BRITAIN DENIES SECRET BARGAIN WITH JAPAN

U.S. SUSPICIONS REMOVED

ATMOSPHERE IN NAVAL PARLEY CLEARED

UNPLEASANT SUGGESTION OF POLITICAL BRIBERY

AMERICA RELIEVED

London, Nov. 12.

An atmosphere of doubt and some tension, caused by the spreading of wild rumours of an Anglo-Japanese rapprochement in naval and commercial affairs, had been noticeable lately at the naval conversations here, but was removed to-night by a statement made by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Premier of Great Britain.

The unpleasant suggestion of international bribery at the naval conversations has been removed, and the American delegates, it seems, are relieved.

Categorical denial was given by Mr. MacDonald this evening to rumours current in the United States that alongside the naval conversations in London there was "intense, secret economic and political activity" between the British and the Japanese parliaments. The Prime Minister sharply denied that the Japanese had made the United Kingdom a secret offer of concessions with regard to the Japanese and Manchukuo oil markets, and that both sides were considering the question of Japanese competition with Britain in the textile market and the possibility of a compromise there.

NO SECRECY.

Mr. MacDonald, in an authorised statement, emphasised that the American representatives at the London conversations had been kept informed of what passed between the Japanese and British delegates. The Japanese, he added, had been similarly informed as to what passed between the British and American groups.

There was no truth in the story of secret Anglo-Japanese economic and political activity, said the statement, and the British Government's representatives had not been asked secretly, or otherwise, to consider any offer of concessions with regard to Manchukuo and Japanese oil markets.

LONG FORGOTTEN.

As to the textile trade competition compromise story, Mr. MacDonald declared that textile negotiations with Japan had been in abeyance for months so far as the British Government was concerned. The British Prime Minister's statement is regarded in American naval delegation circles as most helpful and as having cleared the air.—Reuter.

TEXT OF STATEMENT.

London, Nov. 12. The Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, whose attention has been called to current press statements published in the United States with regard to the London naval conversations, has authorised the following statement: "I would like to have it thoroughly understood that the American representatives have been kept informed of what passes between the Japanese representatives and ourselves during the conversations, just as the Japanese have been similarly informed of what has passed between the Americans and ourselves. There is no truth in the story that there is intense secret activity between the British and Japanese on the economic and political fronts.

"As regards the Manchukuo and Japanese oil situations, which have been fully discussed in the press, we have been asked, neither secretly nor otherwise, to consider

H.K. DOLLAR'S SLIGHT GAIN

Despite a rise of 1½ pence in silver prices over the holidays, the Hongkong dollar only advanced 3/8ths this morning to 1s. 7½d. Inter-bank business was done early in the morning at 1s. 8½d. The market was quite firm on opening.

Following a farthing rise on Saturday, silver prices rose 1½ pence in London yesterday, making the quotations 25¼ spot and 25¾ forward. The London rise was due to small offerings and heavy speculative buying. The market closed uncertain.

London, Nov. 12. "If a man subscribed sixpence every week for eight months in the year, he might win once in 68 years," was the Liberal argument in the House of Commons to-day where supporters of the Betting Lotteries Bill were attempting to prove to the man-in-the-street that where football betting pools were concerned the book-maker is on a certainty, and the rake off is enough to hand the chief sponsors of the pools in the House of Lords, if they have social ambitions.

One speaker calculated that 5,000,000 people contributed £250,000 every week to these pools, which amounted to £9,000,000 in a season. Of this huge sum the promoters of the pools pocketed nearly one third for expenses and profits.—Reuter-Special.

any offer of concessions. So far as the Governments are concerned, negotiations regarding the textile situation have been in abeyance for some months. For the industrial and commercial deputations recently in Japan, the Federation of British Industries is solely responsible, and its members have themselves stated that it has no other status."

ROYAL COUPLE'S HONEYMOON

Lord Dudley Lends His Estate

London, Nov. 12. Much public interest is being centred in the wedding of the Duke of Kent and Princess Marina, which is to take place on November 29.

Part of their honeymoon will be spent at Himley, the Warwickshire seat of Lord Dudley, who has lent it to the Duke for that purpose. The Duke and his bride will drive from Buckingham Palace to Paddington after the wedding breakfast, and will go to Birmingham by special train.—British Wireless.

MOONEY MAY GO FREE

BOMB OUTRAGE RECALLED

AGED MOTHER'S PLEA

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1926. Received, November 12, 5.10 a.m.)

Washington, Nov. 12. The Supreme Court here to-day ordered the Chief Warden of San Quentin Penitentiary to show cause in forty days why the noted prisoner, Tom Mooney, should not be allowed to ask for a writ of habeas corpus in an effort to secure his freedom.

Mooney, it will be recalled, was sentenced to life imprisonment some years ago following a bomb outrage during a parade in San Francisco when Communists were alleged to have organised an attack. Several persons were killed.

Mooney, together with two others, was sentenced to prison, but later one of those accused with him made statements which, it was believed, exonerated Mooney. The authorities, however, refused to give him his freedom or a chance to fight his case again.

It was a plank in the platform of Mr. Upton Sinclair, who contested the California governorship, that Mooney should be given a new trial.

Last year Mrs. Mary Mooney, 85-year-old mother of the prisoner, was received by President Roosevelt. She said: "I wish you'd do your utmost to help my boy. He's innocent." President Roosevelt replied: "I feel sure that because so many people believe he's innocent there must be some reason for believing in his innocence."

Since then agitation has continued and the Washington Supreme Court's ruling is the latest chapter of Mooney's ten year fight for freedom.—United Press.

CHINA'S BLOW AT DRUG TRAFFIC

Complete Control In Sight

CLANDESTINE TRADE TO BE DISCUSSED

GENEVA FEELS OPTIMISM

Geneva, Nov. 12.

The general situation in China as regards opium and narcotics will be considered at the nineteenth session of the Opium Advisory Committee of the League of Nations on November 15.

It is gathered that the Chinese Government has communicated to the League a series of regulations which have recently been adopted, virtually establishing an opium monopoly in the provinces of Hupeh, Honan, Anhwei, Kiangai, Hunan, Fukien, Chekiang, Shensi and Kiangsu.

The new regulations will provide for the suppression of the trade in opium within six years and mark an evident desire on the part of China to suppress opium smoking, the clandestine manufacture of narcotics and the illicit traffic in high power drugs.

The Committee will also discuss the clandestine narcotic traffic out of Manchukuo into North China and the closing down of secret drug factories in China, as well as concessions in foreign settlements and leased territories.—Reuter.

RECOMMENDATIONS CONFLICT

VARIOUS CABINET SELECTIONS

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1926. Received, November 12, 5.10 a.m.)

Washington, Nov. 12.

High army circles are disconcerted at the delay in naming a new Chief of Staff or the announcement of the reappointment of General Douglas MacArthur, whose term expires on November 20.

Several high army commands are due for a change, but no transfers are possible until the question of the Chief of Staff's identity is settled.

The Secretary for War, Mr. George H. Dern, has recommended the reappointment of General MacArthur, but the Postmaster-General, Mr. James A. Farley, is reported to have been urging the consideration of others for the post, including Major-General Dennis E. Nolan, Major-General Hugh A. Drum, and Major-General Malin Craig.

It is reported, furthermore, that Mr. Henry Stimson, former Secretary of State, recently recommended to President Roosevelt the appointment of Major-General Frank R. McCoy.—United Press.

EX-OFFICERS JOIN SAAR POLICE FORCE

BRITISH RECRUITS ENLISTED

London, Nov. 12.

Asked in the House of Commons whether British ex-officers were being recruited as police officers for the Saar, the Prime Minister said the position was that, acting under the resolution adopted by the League Council of June 4 last, the Secretary General of the League recommended members of the League on September 3 to facilitate the task of the Saar Governing Commission in recruiting additional personnel outside the Saar for its police force during the plebiscite period.

In response to the recommendation, a number of applications for employment, received from ex-officers, were forwarded to the Saar Governing Commission after a preliminary enquiry on certain particular points.—British Wireless.

Shing Mun Wolfram Mine Raid

SEVEN BANDITS SLAY LICENSEE

EMPLOYEE WOUNDED

The Shing Mun Valley district again figures in police crime records to-day, the latest affair being an armed robbery in which the licensee of a wolfram ore mine was shot dead.

The tragedy happened occurred last night at about 9 o'clock, when a number of robbers armed with automatics entered premises occupied by Wong Ping, licensee of the mine, and ransacked the place.

In the course of a melee following resistance to the intruders, Wong Ping was murdered, being shot with a revolver, while Chun Mai, an employee of Wong's was wounded.

Altogether, it is believed that seven men took part in the raid on the premises, and all got away, taking some money with them. The police now have the matter in hand.

STORY OF ATTACK

A more detailed report of the affair, supplied to the police by Au Kit, accountant of the Hui Li Mining Co., of Needle Hill, Shing Mun, states that at about 8 o'clock last night he was writing accounts when three men entered the office, which was also used as living quarters. All three were masked with towels over their faces.

Two of the intruders each fired a shot. Wong Ping, the owner of the mine, was lying in bed in the office at the rear of the building at the time.

Au Kit was taken by the robbers to a cubicle, and here he was covered up with a grass mat. Whilst he was lying there, he heard Wong Ping shout "Save Life!"

There was one fork in the main room asleep, three others in the cockpit, and Chan Mui, who was wounded, as well as another employee were in the cubicle where Au Kit was imprisoned.

The four other robbers kept guard at the office door, and intruders were on the premises for about a quarter of an hour. In all, they stole $120 in money. All the robbers spoke Panti with a Hakka accent, and had the appearance of shop coolies.

NORTH CHINA DEVELOPMENT

NANKING TO TAKE RESPONSIBILITY

Peking, Nov. 12.

Dr. H. H. Kung, Finance Minister, has been in conference with the leaders of the Peking Administration, including General Huang Fu, Chairman of the Peking Political Council, and General Yu Hsueh-chung, Governor of Hopei Province, concerning financial and administrative problems in North China.

It is learned that one of the decisions taken is that the Central Government will take full responsibility in financing the construction programme to be carried out in North China.

The Finance Minister together with Madame Chiang Kai-shek will leave for the South to-morrow, via Tientsin.—Central News.

Melbourne, Nov. 12.

Glowing valedictory tributes were paid to H.R.H. the Duke of Gloucester on his departure from this city to-day.

The farewell to the Prince brought to an official close the centenary celebrations for which His Royal Highness had come to Melbourne.

Tens of thousands of enthusiastic people lined the streets for four miles as the Duke of Gloucester, accompanied by dignitaries of the State, drove to the dock where H.M.S. Sussex lay. He was cheered all along the route, and as he went aboard the cruiser the send-off reached the climax of its enthusiasm.

H.M.S. Sussex sailed for Tasmania almost immediately, and after a visit there will return to New South Wales where the Prince will make the closer acquaintance of that State.—Reuter-Special.

It is understood that the proposal, which has created great interest, has the approval of the Navy.

C.E.R. Employees Want Cash Compensation

Tientsin, Nov. 13.

A report from Tokyo states that a dispute as to the proper way in which a compensation payment of Yen 30,000,000 should be made by Manchukuo to Russia, has arisen. The money is compensation for those Soviet employees of the C.E.R. likely to be discharged after the transfer of the Railway. The friction is developing in the course of the negotiations between Mr. Yurenev, the Soviet Ambassador, and Mr. Hirota, Japanese Foreign Minister.

The Soviet demand that Yen 30,000,000 be paid in whole at once has been turned down by the Japanese side. The discharged Soviet employees will probably be paid in fiduciary bonds.—Central News.

U.S. URGED TO GUARD OIL SUPPLY

EXHAUSTION OF RESERVES NEAR?

Washington, Nov. 1.
Crisis in the oil industry may lead to joint action by California,
Texas and Oklahoma to impose
coordinated state control in place of proposed strict federal regulation.

The tri-state project has figured in informal discussions between interested Oklahoma and Californians. Whether Texas has been brought into the preliminary conversations is not known here.

The Secretary of Interior Mr.
Harold I. Ickes has told a congressional committee that state laws are failing to safeguard the nation's oil reserves and that a federal conservation policy must
be imposed.

Mr. Amos L. Beaty, chairman of the Oil Code Planning and Coordination Committee, disputed
Mr. Ickes' statement. He said the industry urgently required stabilization. But Mr. Beaty felt conservatism was of secondary importance, explaining that there was no imminent danger of petroleum
reserves being exhausted.

Mr. Ickes warned that the nation's oil reserves were limited.
Other witnesses said reserves would be exhausted in 15 years at present production levels.

"The fact cannot be contradicted,"
he said, "that the United States is using its oil reserves at a rate which is three times as rapid as that of the rest of the world. The result will be that we'll have an oil shortage before one exists in any other country."

Persons who agree with Mr.
Ickes believe oil could become a most effective medium of foreign pressure in dealing with the United States if this country's reserves were depleted. The United States is more nearly motorized than any other nation. Individual dependence upon automotive
transportation would make the people generally keenly aware of any foreign combination's efforts
to increase the price of petroleum
and its products. The motoring public remembers the most recent instance of that kind of operation
when Great Britain's Stephenson
Plan for restriction of rubber production sent tyre prices sky high.

PERMANENT POLICY.

"There is need of a permanent policy," Mr. Ickes contended. "It must be and that will be effective not only during periods of scarcity
but also during periods when oil imports must be encouraged."
"Acting by itself and within its
own limits of authority no state can protect itself from the influence of uncontrolled drilling and production in another state."

The suggested California-Oklahoma-Texas combination recognizes the weight of his argument that
no state can be effective alone.
But it is argued that if these three leading producers join in uniform regulations which were strictly enforced the desirable ends of regulation could be achieved and control
would remain vested in the state
for whatever profit or advantage
could be obtained.

Bureau of Mines figures for 1932
show that those three states produced 643,850,000 barrels of oil.
Other principal producers were:
New York, 3,508,000; Pennsylvania,
12,412,000; Ohio, 4,664,000;
West Virginia, 3,976,000; Kentucky,
6,287,000; Illinois, 4,674,000; Kansas, 34,848,000; Wyoming, 13,418,000;
Louisiana, 21,897,000, and Arkansas 12,051,000.

In preliminary discussion of the California-Texas-Oklahoma combination it has been contended that joint action by those states would be a controlling factor in the oil industry. No formal action could be taken before midwinter.

SOME OF THE USES OF VINEGAR

VINEGAR will cleanse a slimy
sponge, or, if used in the bath,
it banishes aches and pains.
Coloured garments do not run in the wash if first steeped in water to which vinegar has been added.

Hard water may be softened by vinegar for rinsing the hair. Fried food is never sordid if a little vinegar is added to the fat before it bubbles. White vinegar added to the water in which eggs are poached, or thin-shelled eggs are boiled, keeps them firm and unbroken.

Fewer eggs are needed in cake-
making if a teaspoonful of vinegar
is mixed with the other ingredients.
In housework, also, vinegar is most useful. Windows remain clean if a few drops are added to the washing water, and flies avoid them.
Hot vinegar removes paint marks,
and linoleum will not crack if cleaned with oil and vinegar in equal parts. Moistened stove polish with vinegar, instead of water, and a gentle rubbing will produce a bright polish, while a few drops of vinegar, burnt on a hot shovel, remove all traces of the smell of stale
smoke from a room.

BLOOD FEUD ENDED

A BALKAN STATE OF PEACE

An enthusiastic account of how
in ten years Albania has been rescued from a state of barbarism in which a quarter of the annual deaths were due to blood-feuds was given recently by a noted traveller
on his return to London from a visit to Albania.

Credit for bringing peace and order to Albania he gives to King
Zog.

He set up a British Commandant-
General of the gendarmerie six years ago, with close on 3,000 gen-darmes, all picked men. The leader
was Major-General Sir Jocelyn
Percy, formerly of the British Army.

Under the direction of General
Percy, and linked by a modern telephone system, the gendarmes have penetrated every corner of the country and have put a stop to feud killings.

LEGISLATION INVALID?

U.S. COURTS TEST N. I. R. A. STRENGTH

BIG BUSINESS FACES LOSS

Washington, Nov. 6.
New Deal policies are meeting old arguments before the Supreme Court in a way that may make the session the most momentous in the history of the court.

Several cases of utmost importance have already been carried to the court. New appeals vital to present day governmental trends
are expected to rise before the term
ends next Spring.

Outstanding of New Deal policies to come to the court are those involving the oil control provision of
the National Industrial Recovery
Act and gold legislation.

The court last spring decided to hear argument in an appeal involving the validity of the oil production control regulations of the Interior Secretary, Mr. Harold L.
Ickes, and the sections of the N.I.R.A. under which they were issued. The appeal was taken by the government from the ruling of a Texas federal district judge that they were invalid. The government obtained a delay in the decisive issue, a move that was interpreted by some as indicating a fear of facing the issue.

Since then the Fifth Circuit
Court of Appeals in two other cases has held the regulations valid and
the producing companies which sought the test have appealed. The tribunal was expected to consider them at the same time it hears the government's appeal.

The government's attitude toward these questions is perhaps best indicated by the fact that Mr.
Ickes sought revision of the oil control law at the last session of Congress, and failed.

PROTECTING DOLLAR.

Of even greater importance to the administration's policies is an attack on the law and regulations devaluing the dollar in terms of gold. This case involves the right of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to meet its interest payments on a $1,000 bond in currency at the old rate of value of gold. It raises issues which, when resolved will affect billions of dollars of indebtedness carrying the promise of payment in gold of the weight and fineness per dollar that prevailed at
the time the debt was contracted.
In the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad bond test the company will be obliged to pay more than $38 in currency to meet a $22.50 interest payment if devaluation were held constitutional.

Of importance paralleling the
devaluation case is an appeal attacking the law and regulation for bidding gold hoarding and making the offence punishable by heavy civil and criminal penalties.

NO APPROVAL.

Both cases come to the court with the support of Lower tribunals for the law. The New York Court of Appeals, one of the admittedly great judicial bodies of the country, approved devaluation.

The New York Federal courts
sanctioned anti-hoarding regulation.

These cases are considered by those familiar with the court to presage a flood of cases involving administration policies and so-called liberal or progressive legislation which has been enacted either with or without the administration's approval.

Major legislation thus likely to face Supreme Court tests include
the Norris-LaGuardia Act restricting the issuance of injunctions in labour disputes, the Frazier-Lemke
Farm Mortgage Moratorium Act,
recently declared invalid by a Judge in Baltimore, and laws applying to settlement of labour.

WAR GAMES IN EUROPE

MARTIAL SPIRIT GOES ABROAD

NATIONS ARE "READY"

London, Nov. 6.
Europe, thinking, talking and fearing war, also played at war this year more extensively than ever before.
Military, aerial and in some cases naval manoeuvres have been carried out by almost every nation that boasts any kind of war machinery.
Curiously, in almost every case, forces assigned to the job of attack or invasion have gained objectives with comparative ease. The dice were loaded that way, admittedly so.
Attacking forces were given considerable superiority over defenders. To have guardians of the homeland overwhelmed served to bolster the conviction of the populace that they are at the mercy of hostile neighbours. Governments thus have additional popular support in their campaigns for new, additional and improved war weapons.

SILENT BOMBERS.

Some of these new weapons, which may figure in wars of the future are: The ultimate terror of air power, a noiseless airplane, capable of swooping silently through the night sky, approach unsuspected, presence unperceived. British air ministry experts have watched demonstrations of such an airplane, inaudible at 2,500 feet and a "flying tank," in other words an airplane mounting comparatively heavy calibre quick firing field guns.

A French 75 millimetre quick firing gun has been successfully and accurately fired from the wings of a French plane.

French engineers suggest the possibility of building huge towers.

Nils Aather is the latest film star to desert Hollywood for London.

6,000 feet high, six times the altitude of the Eiffel tower, with platforms at different heights from which fighting airplanes could be launched. The airplanes could be housed permanently on the platforms, in time of danger, ready to sweep upon enemy raiders at a moment's notice, without the necessity at first laboriously gaining the required altitude.

DEFENDERS OVERWHELMED.

For the first time in history Great Britain carried out combined army, navy and Royal air force manoeuvres, over a portion of Yorkshire, designed chiefly to afford practice in inter-communication between the three services. Forces of "Britannia," with no warships and only six airplanes, were overwhelmed easily by an in-

TURKEY RESENTS BULGARS' CLAIM

Istanbul, Nov. 5.

"Our patience has certain limits which must not be overstepped," the newspaper Zaman declared in an article which, characteristically for the tension existing between Turkey and Bulgaria, is being reproduced by the entire press of Istanbul.

Commenting on an article, published in a Bulgarian paper, in which it had been said "Thrace is ours by right and it will be re-incorporated in the Bulgarian fatherland," Zaman protested hotly.

The claim was not perturbing Turkey, the paper continued, as it was known that the Bulgarians were never very clever in the field of foreign policy.

One day, however, they might commit a "folly." It should be useful, therefore, to warn them, that—alluding to the Greco-Turkish war—Turkey once, within two weeks accomplished the miracle of expelling "a whole world of enemies."—United Press.

vading force from "Nordania," backed by 43 warships and several squadrons of airplanes.

France's "Blue" army, simulating an invasion of France via Switzerland, gained many successes against a weaker "red" defending army.

Italy, Switzerland, Belgium and Holland concentrated manoeuvres on testing the mobility of their military units.

All four countries specialise in bicycle troops. Holland mounts light machine guns on bicycles. Italy mounts machine guns on motorcycles. Italian cycling troops, during manoeuvres over rough country, up hills and down dales, equalled cavalry in reaching destinations.

BELGIUM'S FRONT LINE.

Belgian "Chasseurs Ardennais," bicycle troops constantly stationed along the frontier, are equipped with explosives to blow up roads and hold up any advancing horde temporarily, pending arrival of reinforcements and mobilisation of the army, an operation which would require from six hours to four days. Belgium is prepared for surprise attack, without a formal declaration of war.

Infantry and heavy artillery still are counted upon for long-drawn-out struggles, but military manoeuvres of the past summer indicate general belief that any European war that may break out will be sudden and unexpected, and that the nation with the most mobile units in such a fight will gain considerable initial advantage.

GERMAN EFFICIENCY.

Large scale military manoeuvres were not held in Germany this year, officially because it was feared that due to the prolonged drought deploying troops might start forest and prairie fires. However widespread manoeuvres were carried out in small units, so organised that at various times almost every buck private in the ranks was called upon to assume temporary leadership of fairly large bodies of troops. All performed notably, confirming the impression that the German Reichswehr is actually an army of sergeants commanded by lieutenants.

Many European nations carried out extensive air raid manoeuvres, especially designed to train civilian populations in the use of gas masks, in the necessity of seeking shelter and in treatment of gas burns. Belgium even built temporary anti-aircraft shelters to demonstrate to the populace of Brussels.

The British government has postponed, at least temporarily, the issuance of an elaborate safety code for civilians during air raids. Mr. Stanley Baldwin announced in July that such a code would be drafted and published. Then a Cabinet sub-committee, after careful consideration, decided issuance of such a code might mislead the public into the belief that war was imminent.

According to authoritative British opinion war is not actually imminent, but most European nations will be ready for it, at least mechanically and technically, if it comes.—United Press.

DIVORCE MUDDLE

REFORM SADLY NEEDED IN U.S.

Chicago, Nov. 7.

There are 48 states in the United States and 47 different varieties of divorces, the American Legislators' Association discovered in an exhaustive survey just made public. The survey ended with a conclusion that only five states agree on what constitutes grounds for divorce.

"The whole situation represents as mad a mess of conflicting ideas and ideals as exist anywhere in our statute books," it was announced.

The nation's divorce laws run from one extreme to the other.

In Nevada, with its Reno mecca for disillusioned mates, only six weeks' residence is required. After that brief sojourn one can receive his or her decree within 24 hours and marry again on the way out of the courthouse.

But in South Carolina when you're married you usually stay married. It takes a special state law to free any spouse, even though the other party may be a drunkard, an adulterer, a maniac or a criminal. Court divorces don't exist.

In 19 states, parties involved in divorce cases are permitted to remarry at once. In 26 other states only the person suing for divorce is given that right.

In South Dakota a convicted adulterer—convicted on divorce hearing evidence—is prohibited from marrying again during the lifetime of his ex-wife. In New York state, the same law prevails unless the defendant has special permission from the court.

Pennsylvania and Tennessee forbid an adulterer from marrying "the other woman in the case" during the lifetime of his ex-wife. The same situation exists in the cases of women defendants found to have been guilty of adultery.

Commenting upon the popularity of easily obtained Mexican divorces, the Legislators' Association said that 2,500 Americans obtained decrees in Mexico last year, but

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

The Mills Brothers sang to a distinguished audience on a First National stage, during the production of "Twenty Million Sweethearts" the radio romance which is scheduled to open at the Alhambra Theatre on Saturday, with Pat O'Brien, Dick Powell and Ginger Rogers in the featured roles. While the quartet's famous number, "Oh, I Heard: Yes, I Heard," was recorded by the camera, listeners gathered from all round the First National lot. Other members of the cast, although not on call, were present including Grant Mitchell, Allen Jenkins, Joseph Cawthorne, Joan Wheeler and Henry O'Neill, as well as many other famous actors of the First National Studios who had heard the Mills Brothers were going to sing for the pictures. The four boys, with their guitar, sing and play for the screen, the first time since the famous "Close-up show" when the almost unbelievable orchestra music is produced by simply blowing through cupped hands. The Mills Brothers furnish one of the thrilling numbers in this comedy romance that is filled with specialists. The picture is based on the story by Paul Filder Moss and Harry Wald which was adapted to the screen by Warren Duff and Harry Sauber. Ray Enright directed the picture. The catchy air sung by Powell and Miss Rogers are by that ace song writing team of Warren and Dubin.

"Chained"

Sounding the modern note of intimacy and searching psychological reaction typical of the Noel Coward period, one of the most important pictures of the year at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer boasts of a cast of only four major players. And while the cast of "Chained" is small, it is also potent. Clark Gable and Joan Crawford are co-starred, with Otto Kruger and Stuart Erwin in support. The film is showing at the Queen's Theatre. There are other players of note on the official sheet, but the modern story deals primarily with these four. Written especially for the screen and for the co-stars, as is the present trend, by Edgar Selwyn, noted director and producer, the photo story picks up the life thread of a wealthy shipping magnate, Otto Kruger, and the girl with whom he is enamoured, Joan Crawford. With no break in either physical or dramatic movement, it sweeps from the skyscraper to shipboard, where Joan meets and later falls in love with a young South American rancher, Clark Gable, who is returning with his friend, Stuart Erwin from a vacation in the States. Quickly introduced, the characters' lives, in juxtaposition with one another, are followed against a constantly changing background. They are photographed in private and in crowds, but no other characters cross the main thread of the story. Like the general treatment, the ending also bears the stamp of the modern Noel Coward influence. In one of the most dramatic moments of the story, the three discuss the decision which is profoundly to change the course of their personal lives, quietly over a cup of morning coffee. Other characters who appear briefly but impressably are Una O'Connor, Marjorie Gateson,

"Grand Canary"

Warner Baxter heads the strong cast with which Jesse L. Lasky brings A. J. Cronin's best seller novel, "Grand Canary," to the screen of the King's Theatre on Wednesday. In his second vehicle as a full-fledged star, Baxter portrays the role of the eminent young doctor and scientist who is the principal character in the magnificent love story and the gripping drama of regeneration. Early in the picture, Baxter boards a ship at Liverpool bound for the Canary Islands. His nerves are shattered, his life apparently wrecked because the world regards him as a murderer, misunderstanding his efforts to save three dying patients by inoculating them with a serum he has developed. Through the strategy of political enemies the cases were turned over to him too late and death resulted. On the voyage he meets, among other passengers, Lady Mary Fielding, portrayed by Midge Evans. He confesses his story to her, and she is drawn to one another and fall in love. Neither will yield to the desire in their hearts, however, because she is married. Arriving in the Canary Islands, Baxter hears of a yellow fever epidemic that is raging inland and sets up a temporary hospital in an old hacienda. Midge Evans goes to him there to confess her love, but he finds she has contracted the dread fever. Through anxious hours, he finally conquers the fever and she lives. Then he plunges into the epidemic and checks it with his serum, so he returns to London a doctor on earth, no longer a doctor in the tropics. Moonlight scenes on the ship and in the tropical beauty of the islands form beautiful settings for the romantic scenes. Other characters in the drama are vividly portrayed by Marjorie Rambeau, Zita Johann, Roger Imhof, and H. B. Warner, Irving Cummings directed.

"Lilly Turner"

Following her brilliant success in "Frisco Jenny," which movie fans by their enthusiastic attendance proved that was the type of role they'd like to see Ruth Chatterton in, the First National studio again cast her as a divorcee on earth, no. This time she appears in the title role of "Lilly Turner," which opens to-morrow at The Alhambra. Advance reports from Hollywood say that Miss Chatterton has even eclipsed her extraordinary fine work in "Frisco Jenny." "Lilly Turner," while the star of the screen from the New York stage success, is a story of a beautiful girl, whose beauty and figure are used as a "come-on" for yokels, by the owner of a travelling health exhibit, which she joins after a hard checked career. Playing the title role, Chatterton, who imaged Hollywood by actually doing a "come-on" dance in lights instead of using a double, in the picture, is said to give a sublime characterization with her dramatic power, rising to great heights. George Arliss, for the first time since his marriage to Ruth Chatterton, appears with her in the same picture as the health exhibit's strong man. They had both appeared together in "The Crash," but that picture had been made before their marriage. Guy Kibbee, last seen in "42nd Street," cast as Dr. McGill, the owner of the travelling health exhibit, while Frank McHugh plays the role of Lilly Turner's drunken husband. All told there are eleven splendid players who appear opposite Chatterton. These include Ruth Donnelly, Gordon Stratcott, Grant Mitchell, and Mae Busch.

"The House of Rothschild"

George Arliss, who has given the screen many unusual things in the way of characterisation, enjoys a new experience in his latest picture, "The House of Rothschild," his first 20th Century starring vehicle which is the current feature attraction at the King's Theatre. For seldom do the vagaries of the drama permit an actor to play father to himself as Arliss does in this Joseph M. Schenck Darryl F. Zanuck presentation. Taking for its plot the rise to world power of the Rothschild family during the Napoleonic era and stressing the loyalty and love between its members, this picture has been pronounced the biggest production in the respective careers of 20th Century pictures and George Arliss, who plays both old Mayer Rothschild, the father, and Nathan Rothschild, the one of the five sons who did the most to win the family world renown. Watching Arliss as Alfred Werker directed him, during the filming of this United Artists release, one of the secrets of his success could have been easily realised. He is one star who works for the joy of his labours and to justify the large salary he receives. Arliss' portrayal in this picture is a carefully prepared one. During his recent vacation in London he spent considerable time in a library there studying up all the personal facts concerning the early Rothschilds he could find. He is an omnivorous reader, and likes research work. All the characteristics he could fork out, like the habit of peering at Nathan, whom he portrays, of forgetting to remove his hat in the presence of royalty, and other of the man's little mannerisms, he brought back to Hollywood and had embodied in the script.

Williams, R.A., prominent local sportsman and interport cricketer and polo player, pleaded guilty to seven charges of making false entries in the balance sheet and cash books of the Battery Funds of the 4th. (H.K.S.) Heavy Battery, H.K.S.R.A. and the Garrison Hunt and Polo Club at a District Court Martial at Scandal Point Hall yesterday.

The Court comprised Brigadier F. S. Thackeray, D.S.O., M.C., Shanghai, (President), Lieut. Col. A. C. Marsh (East Lancashire Regiment), Major J. A. A. Griffin, D.S.O., (Lincolnshire Regiment), Major P. Gottwalt, M.C. (S.W.B.), Capt. A. R. Gottwalt, M.C. (S.W.B.), and Capt. R. A. Irwin (East Lancashire Regiment).

Capt. D. Dunlop, R.A., prosecuted, and Capt. A. C. Hancock, R.A., appeared for the defence.

After accused had pleaded guilty to each charge, the President said: "You realise that you are admitting that you did these things knowingly and you will not be able to plead that you did them 'unintentionally'—Accused: Yes.

A summary of the evidence was ordered to be read. It was stated that Capt. E. C. J. Barry was President of the Audit Board which examined the accounts of the Battery as a routine matter in September and he discovered irregularities which he pointed out to accused. He told accused that he could not audit the accounts as they stood and handed the accounts back to him for alteration.

The Board was adjourned and Capt. Barry ordered that all accounts should be made up. When he received accused's accounts again he had a conversation with Capt. Dunlop and Capt. E. M. Bolt and they decided to put the matter before Lt. Col. D. C. Wilson, O. C. of the Battery. A sum of $350 had been paid into the accounts the day after the audit meeting.

Major P. A. Gedde, Assistant Command Paymaster, in his deposition stated that he was a chartered accountant and examined the accounts of accused. There were items of $100 to the Garrison Hunt and Polo Fund drawn by Capt. Williams, set out as having been received, by him as a loan to the Club. There were two similar items of $50 each noted as a loan or grant and a further item on July 31 showing a payment by cheque of $250 to the same effect. Receipts had been signed by Capt. Williams stating that the money was a loan to the Garrison Hunt and Polo Club. Another receipt stated "£100 loan to Fanning Hunt" and was signed by accused.

Civilian Witnesses.

The depositions of Mr. W. H. B. Rigg, cashier of the Kowloon branch of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, were read with that made by Mr. W. B. Johnson of the Chartered Bank, hearing out previous evidence.

Lt. G. B. Courtland, R.A. had deposed that he acted as secretary of the Garrison Hunt and Polo Club up to June 22 and received no payments at all from accused.

Lt. A. J. Ropes, R.A., who took over the secretaryship after June, had given similar evidence.

K. Lee, forger, merchant, of Pottinger Street, and Lo Kuen, representing Wang Hing Jewellers, No. 10, Queen's Road, had stated they received cheques in part payment of their accounts.

The deposition of Lt. Col. D. C. Wilson stated that after the report made to him he examined the accounts and found a deficit of $97 in the cash book. He spoke to accused who said he had borrowed the money with the intention of returning it. Witness ordered him to be placed under open arrest as he had no authority to borrow money or make transfers from the accounts.

Accused had declined to cross-examine any of the witnesses or make a statement and had reserved his defence.

Following the reading of the summary of evidence the President asked accused if he now wished to make a statement.

Accused's Statement.

Accused said: "I ran both the Garrison Hunt and Polo Club and Fanning Hunt accounts. The Battery Fund account is kept in pencil for me by my pay-servant and I ink it over at the end of the month when I go through the accounts. On each occasion when the Garrison Hunt and Polo Club has been written down in the cash book it should have been the Fanning Hunt. No money has ever been paid by me to the Garrison Hunt and Polo Club. It is a self supporting account which is paid through officers' mess books mostly.

"I have carelessly inked in over Polo Club amounts in the cash book instead of writing in Fanning Hunt. I have got the Fanning Hunt books here which shows that in February, I handed back $100 in cash, to the 4th. Battery funds.

Also it shows in the cash book in May that the Fanning Hunt received $100 from me and in July a cheque for $250. I have a receipt here for paying $80 to the kennelmen; $65 paid to the Fanning Hunt for the overdraft; and a receipt for the second payment of $50 to K. Lee.

"This shows that all the money was actually given to the Fanning Hunt and not to the Garrison Hunt and Polo Club. The cash which should have been paid in on the 18th, was in my safe less $97. I paid it into the bank on the 17th, borrowing $97 from the messing fund.

"When Col. Wilson sent for me to check the cash on the 19th, I was on my way to get the $97 to put back in the safe and I actually put it back an hour after Col. Wilson had checked the money.

Previous Court Martial.

"I should like to state here that I have once before made a mess of running accounts and was court-martialled for it, and I realise that it is no good my going on trying to run accounts in the Army, so I am going to send my papers in. I have asked to do so but they have not been accepted yet. I have them with me here."

In repeating his statement, accused added that his misfortune was due to carelessness. He intended sending in his papers no matter what happened.

The President: Having read carefully through your statement I see what it amounts to, in that you use the word "carelessly". That word implies that you have not been guilty of the second, third and fourth charges. Do you wish that word to remain—Accused: No.

Then it means that I find you guilty?—Yes.

You are prepared to have that word taken out?—Yes.

You must have realised when you inked in, what you were writing—I did not realise that putting "carelessly" in meant that I was pleading not guilty.

You made the entries knowingly?—Yes.

Accused said he wished to call two witnesses as to character.

Col. Wilson gave evidence and said: I think Capt. Williams is a very energetic officer and in many ways most capable. He trains his Battery well and it is, in my opinion, an efficient Battery.

Major H. M. J. McIntyre said he had known Capt. Williams for four years. He had instructed accused in gunnery at Shoeburyness, when he had been distinctly above the average in ability. He had represented the Army and Regiment in many games, was a well-known regimental amateur rider and an exceptionally good all-rounder.

Army Record.

The prosecuting officer, reading accused Army record, said he was mentioned in despatches in 1917. He was 37 years of age, and was entitled to reckon 19 years' service for the purpose of pension. He had been under open arrest for twenty-four days and in close arrest one day. Accused was court-martialled at Bulford in October 1932 for making a false statement in a book kept by him while O. C. in charge of messing for the 9th. Field Brigade, that £9.8.0 had been paid to the Bulford and Brighton Breweries when it had not been paid. The sentence of the court was that a severe reprimand should be administered.

The defending officer, addressing the court in mitigation said: "I must point out to the court that here is nothing in these charges showing any sort of fraud, or fraudulent intent or misappropriation. This is nothing of a dishonest nature and accused has produced the Fanning Hunt accounts to allay any suspicion and explained how the sums were expended."

Continuing, the defending officer emphasised that the offence was committed under a military and not a civil law and, in fact, could not have been maintained under the latter, in which there must be shown an attempt to defraud. Without attempting to tell the court whether the charges were trivial or not he was bound to say that they were laid under the least innocuous part of the Section. A mistake in a cash book was technically sufficient to sustain the charge, and it was for this reason that accused had decided that it would be a waste of time to argue about each charge, though argument would probably have yielded some points and material in his favour. The offence was technical and technical only, he submitted.

A Human Story.

"The use the money was put to is a very human and simple story," he continued. It was used for the Fanning Hunt, of which accused was Master. It is common knowledge that all Masters of Hunts have considerable difficulty in meeting their expenses. Expenses come on winter and summer and subscribers are slow to pay.

"It is no exaggeration to say that all Masters are out of pocket, and Capt. Williams was no exception. The fact that the Hunt

MAN'S MEAN ACTION

REPAYS HOSPITALITY BY STEALING CLOTHES

Repaying a friend's hospitality by stealing a suitcase containing 30 articles of clothing, Yip Tak, aged 27 years, unemployed, was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistrate's yesterday morning.

Defendant was invited by his friend, Lau Yung, to play mah jong in his flat at No. 2 Mow Lam Street, first floor, on October 26, and was invited to stop the night there. The next day he went away and took the suitcase with him, but the loss was not discovered until two days after the theft. Defendant was arrested in Public Square Street. All the clothing and the suitcase were later recovered.

"Poverty drove me to steal the things," said defendant in answer to his Worship's question as to why he had stolen the things from his friend, after he had been invited to play mah jong and had been given food and shelter.

was exceedingly well run and the hounds very well kept, shows that the money was definitely expended on them. He is probably one of the keenest and most energetic Masters the Fanning Hunt has ever had, and he found his means unable to meet the expenses and borrowed from his Battery fund. Every cent of that money had been paid back."

In conclusion, the defending officer said this charge could not have been raised in war time, when the accounts were not the responsibility of the officers. Capt. Williams had, rightly or wrongly, been encouraged to participate in a great deal in the sports in which he was so proficient. He was a sportsman and a leader of men, but he was no accountant.

He asked the Court to give full consideration to the meaning of the Section under which the charges were brought. He suggested that the meaning was somewhat obscure. The Court should further bear in mind the needs of war as well as the needs of peace, and the characteristics of accused, who was more a sportsman and leader than a man who kept accounts.

The Court was then closed to consider its decision, which will be promulgated later.

BRITAIN, JAPAN AND AMERICA

There is talk in London and elsewhere of the possible revival, in a new form, of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance. To what extent the reports are based on probabilities it is difficult to say. But there does seem some ground for the assertion that economic as well as political issues have figured in the conversations on the naval problem, despite to-day's denial that there has been anything secretive in the exchanges of view. The suggestion is that Japan may be content with something less than naval parity if some arrangement could be devised leading to the cessation of the textile war between herself and Britain. It is from this somewhat flimsy basis that rumours have gained currency of the possibility of a new alliance being devised. It is of interest to recall that the old Anglo-Japanese Alliance began in 1905, and that in addition to involving an understanding for the mutual defence of the territorial rights of the two nations in the Far East and India, it aimed at the preservation of peace in Eastern Asia, by ensuring the independence and integrity of China, with the policy of the Open Door for all nations. The Alliance was renewed in 1911 for a period of ten years, with certain modifications, but was then allowed to lapse. It is known that American susceptibilities were a factor in the non-renewal of the Alliance, besides which its continuance was not looked upon favourably in League of Nations circles. Since 1921, a great deal has happened in the Far East, throwing suspicion on some of Japan's policies, and certainly leading to an estrangement between Britain and Japan. The textile dispute has also latterly served to aggravate the position. Yet, on looking back, it must be conceded that the old Alliance was a stabilising factor in the Far East, and its value in this respect can hardly be overstated. Hopes in some quarters that the closer drawing together of Britain and the United States, following the lapsing of the Alliance, would compensate for the change of alignment, and still preserve peace in the Orient, have been undermined to some extent by recent events in this part of the world. But it is very much open to question whether there can be any revival of the former understanding between Britain and Japan along the lines of the old alliance. Such a step would obviously evoke unwelcome American reactions, to say nothing of the present trend of world politics against definite military and naval groupings. None the less, any feasible plan which would lead to the streng-

NOTES OF THE DAY

BRITISH EFFICIENCY

Mr. Herbert N. Casson was writing for the information of the Canadian people when he said: "There has been a belief in Canada that the United States is the land of progress, and that Great Britain is the land of tradition." He goes on to say that if a man wants to know what is new, certainly he should go to New York, but if he wants to know what is tested, proved and sound, he should go to London. Mr. Casson is an authority on business management, economics, efficiency and such. His word must be respected. Since he was born in Canada and spent 24 years there, he knows the Dominion. Since he spent the next twenty-odd years in the United States, he should know America. And, finally, having spent the last twenty years in England, he must be in a position to compare the merits of the British and American business systems, and advise all British people of the fruits of his experience. Canadians are not the only ones who, in the past, may have felt some doubt as to the efficacy of the British business system. Too conservative! Old fashioned! No efficiency! These epithets were too frequently thrown into the faces of the reserved and wholly competent British man of business. Mr. Casson has something to say about such charges.

ERA OF EXPERIMENT

It is quite true, he points out, that before the War Great Britain had been losing, since 1885, the position of foremost industrial nation of the world. During the War and for six years afterwards, the bureaucracy and politicians were in control. British business lay prostrate. Britain had her six years of "New Deal," she had state control, and the experiment was a failure. Then, in 1920 came the revival of private enterprise. The "reconstruction department" was quietly abolished and there commenced a twelve year period of slow and unsteady recovery. It was not until last year that the strong upward trend began. But in 1933 463 new factories were built and 96 old ones extended, about half of the total in or near London. Ten per cent. of these were branch factories, built by foreign companies, because of the new British policy of protection. More new factories were built in Britain in 1933 than in any other country. In 1934 there was only one automobile factory in the world which paid 100 per cent. dividends. It was Sir Herbert Austin's, employing 16,000 persons, not the largest in the world, but certainly the most efficient. Since 1926, in three good years and five bad ones, it has increased its output and exports 500 per cent. and its wages 145 per cent. It has lowered its prices 65 per cent. and has paid the highest dividends in Great Britain. Not bad for these conservative! Furthermore, it has received no state help of any kind, nor any monopoly or other advantages.

GROWING CITIES

While the slogan everywhere else is, "Back to the land," Britain's cities are expanding at incredible speed. Wembley had a population of 20,000 in 1924, and now has 60,000; Hayes had 11,000 in 1928 and now has 35,000; Luton had 50,000 in 1924 and now has 80,000; Coventry had 70,000 in 1901 and now has 190,000. And London still grows. Not only is London the largest city in the world, but it is the fastest growing, covering eight square miles and swallowing up farms and villages. There seems to be no limit to its growth. Where there are such results as these produced by private enterprise there must be efficiency. There have been no new discoveries of natural resources, few government subsidies. In fact the Government has hindered as much as it has helped, except in its policy of home trades protection. The prosperity that is now being created and distributed in Britain is not based on debt. British people are not going to pass on the bill for their progress to posterity. There is no artificial inflation of values. British financiers and businessmen have an efficient system of their own, unsentimental, not based on statistics and organised charts, mechanics or logic, so much as it is based on common sense and a fine tradition of square dealing. Britain can teach the Empire, and the world, a lesson.

thening of Anglo-Japanese friendship would be widely welcomed in both countries. Better still would be an understanding, along the lines of a triple non-aggression pact, between Britain, Japan and the United States. If the present conversations have this eventual result, the bogey of a big upheaval in the Far East would disappear once and for all.

GROWING OLD AND STAYING HAPPY

By SILAS K. HOCKING

THE spectre of old age is generally worse than the reality. The fear of it gradually vanishes the nearer we approach it.

Poets, novelists, dramatists have done their best to make old age appear unlovely and even hideous. The old man is represented as being bleary-eyed and toothless, with knees and shoulders bent, legs unsteady, hands gnarled, and a voice like the croak of a raven.

In reality—speaking generally—that is not true.

I—I am 84—was walking along Parliament-street not long ago with a man who revealed to me that he was ninety-five. His back was not bent, nor were his steps unsteady. He walked firmly and briskly, with head erect and chin thrust out.

He appeared to be interested in most things; the movements of the time, in the political situation, in the state of Europe, and in the state of civilisation.

Old age has its tragedies no doubt—but so has every other period of life. No one can wholly escape the ills to which flesh is heir, but to imagine that old age is the quintessence of all that is a ghastly and frightening human experience is to make a profound mistake.

Hence I like to think of the charm of old age—of its restfulness and peace after the storms have spent their fury. Of the quiet backwater sheltered from the wind, where, rich in garnered knowledge, and undisturbed by the fretful, noisy crowd, one can meditate in quietness, and live over again the sweetest moments that life has given.

Just as the closing hours of a summer's day are often the most beautiful and most restful, so the closing years of a long and busy life may yield the deepest content and provide the most satisfying charm. All the beauty of the world is not in the springtime; nor in the hot and sultry days of summer. Autumn is often richest in colour, and winter has a beauty unknown to all the other seasons.

Life is like the seasons, and each season has its own particular charm. Hence to look forward with fear and distress to the coming winter—to imagine that old age can yield us nothing but pain and anguish, is to reveal a timid and unheroic spirit and to make even the brightest days dark with forebodings that probably will never come true.

Best is sweet only to the tired. If we were never tired we should never know the delight of relaxing our limbs and laying our heads on a pillow of down. After a hard day's work, or a long tramp over hill and dale, who has not said as he has thrown himself into his easy chair, "This is good. This is delightful. This is blessedness deep and satisfying."

Old age is essentially a time of rest and relaxation. The scared and weather-beaten veteran takes off his helmet, removes his heavy armour, gets rid of his mud-clogged boots, and wrapping his dressing-gown round him, and pushing his tired feet into his carpet slippers, drops into his easy chair with a sigh of content.

Outside the bitter wind may rave, and the pitiless rain beat against his window pane, but he does not mind. He only feels sorry for those who are still exposed to the storm.

There may be a few old people who would like to fight life's battles over again—endure the pain of disappointed hopes and thwarted ambition, see their dreams fade like summer clouds, or more rarely feel the momentary ecstasy and thrill of a battle fought and victory won.

But, speaking generally, the quiet and calm of old age are much more to their liking. They enjoy the rest after toil, the peace after strife, and are content to see the new generation putting on the armour that they have laid aside, and are grateful that they have done their job and earned their rest.

Not in all cases, I admit. A happy old age depends on what has gone before it. We reap in large measure what we have sown. There are factors which go to the shaping of our lives for which we are not responsible. Inherited temperaments, weaknesses, dispositions which mar the beauty not only of old age but also of every period of life.

Yet how much we can do for ourselves if we only try!

Having a hobby is vastly important, and a hobby of some kind is surely within the reach of all. The man who retires from business and who has never had a hobby of any sort is in rather a pitiable condition. Nothing can be more boring, or even soul-destroying, than to sit twiddling one's thumbs with nothing to do. No wonder that such people become peevish and irritable and pessimistic, and are a nuisance to themselves and everybody else.

Perhaps the greatest thing of all in producing a delightful old age is to cultivate the friendship of the young. We keep young by entering into the spirit of youth. We can find infinite pleasure in sharing their pleasures and in looking at life from their point of view.

I sometimes meet old men who tell me that they cannot get on with the younger generation at all—don't understand them, don't know what they are up to. Don't know whether they are drifting. Don't know what will be the end of them.

There are silly, frivolous, addled, spineless young men and women in every generation, but the quality of the mass is, I think, finer than ever it was. They are not really at enmity with the old. They want our help, our sympathy, our encouragement. They have a rough road to travel, a hard battle to fight.

If we show ourselves friendly they will be glad of our friendship. And their friendship will enrich us, and be an inspiration. The old and the young should fraternise. They were meant to do so. The one is the complement of the other. The young and the middle-aged will not be afraid of old age when they see the octogenarians as blithe and cheerful as they are themselves—and perhaps a little more so.

The Very Idea!

ALICE IN KOWLOON

By George

"BUT who," asked Alice as she twined her fingers in her neighbour's frock, "is that big handsome man who is sitting in the middle of the other people?"

"That is the Poet Lindell," quoth the Mad Hatter. "He is the No. 1 to-night and will have some nice things to say to you."

With these words the Mad Hatter put his hand behind Alice, and skilfully removed a tart from the table into his mouth.

"Oh!" said Alice and burst into tears.

The Mad Hatter stood still with his mouth wide open and the tart stuck halfway in. He looked so funny that Alice dried her eyes on Abigail's handkerchief and stopped crying.

"It's perfectly absurd," said the Mad Hatter. However he finished his tart and took Alice by the hand to place her near the platform where they could hear the speaker's words.

The Poet Lindell began to speak. Alice was fidgeting with her hair but suddenly she noticed that the Mad Hatter was thumping his feet on the floor. He always did this when he was annoyed.

"What is it?" asked Alice in a whisper that could be heard all over the room.

"He is talking about the Wonder-land of Kowloon," said the Mad Hatter indignantly. Alice remembered that the Mad Hatter lived on the Peak and began to giggle.

"It's just post-runs," stammered the Mad Hatter and he went back to find another tart.

Then the Poet Lindell in a big husky voice began to recite:

"Will you please roll up in hundreds, said the Vicar to Kowloon. There'll be others close behind you so you can't get here too soon."

You can really have no notion how delightful it can be To visit all the stalls and shows and then sit down to tea.

To St. Andrew's then, your parents with your children all repair. Now don't revoke, beloved folk, but come and join the Fair.

Will you, will you, will you, won't you, etc., etc.

Of course you will and have. "Oh how lovely," said Alice and began to clap her hands.

The Mad Hatter pulled her roughly out of the room. "Punk," he said in an angry voice. "Get into a ricksha and we'll go home."

FUTILITY OF OPPOSITIONINDUSTRY TO GIVE UP STRUGGLE

Washington, Nov. 12. It is believed here that because of the overwhelmingly popular endorsement of Administration policies as a result of the elections, industrial leaders are realising the futility of effective political opposition to the Administration and will co-operate with the Roosevelt Regime.

The Administration's programme includes a revision of the tax system, comprehensive railway legislation, passage of perfecting amendments to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, comprehensive revision of the National Industrial Recovery Administration along permanent lines and social legislation.

A trade agreement between Great Britain and the United States, which is now being very informally discussed by American diplomats in London, might incorporate the stabilisation of the pound-dollar cross rate. Further inflationary monetary legislation is unlikely.—Swan, Culbertson and Fritz.

JAPANESE ROBBED

OFFICER'S POCKET PICKED IN WANCHAI

T. Sasaki, engineer officer aboard H.M.S. Sago, was the complainant before Mr. W. M. Thomson at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning, when a Hoko, named Cheung Sam, was charged with the theft of 40 yen, and pleaded not guilty.

Det. Sgt. Fitches stated Mr. Sasaki was walking along Queen's Road East and when near Lee Tung Street, it was alleged the defendant slipped his right hand under the complainant's left arm. A little later, Mr. Sasaki felt a tug at his raincoat pocket. He turned round and saw the defendant throwing the wallet to the ground.

He caught hold of the culprit and took him to the Kawahara Tea-house where the defendant promised to find the "other man." Both could not understand each other and the noise attracted the attention of a Chinese constable. The defendant wrote the name of the other man, Cheung Wai, on a menu card. When charged he stated he did not do the stealing but Cheung Wai stole the money.

The Magistrate after hearing evidence came to the conclusion that it was insufficient and discharged the defendant.

BLOCKADE DANGER

LABOUR BARON'S VIEW OF NAVAL QUESTIONS

London, Nov. 8.

The dangers of naval blockade and the necessity of a pact outlawing it are emphasized this morning in an article published in the Daily Herald by Baron Strabolgh, formerly Commander-in-Chief of the Royal Navy and now a Labour leader in the House of Commons.

"The real naval menace," the writer says is not an invasion or bombardment but slow strangulation by blockade. A blockade can be exercised by surface warships, submarines or aircraft, or by all three combined.

"If we British, still the strongest maritime power, gave a bold lead to the freedom of the seas, we should obtain the support of Americans, Italians and probably French. The Japanese would then hardly dare to stand aside and if they did they would be helpless. The logical outcome of Brind-Kellogg pact outlawing war must be the outlawry of private blockade," the writer concludes.—Havas.

No Official Reply

London, Nov. 12. It is learned in official circles that no offer of any compromise on the oil question in Japan or Manchukuo has been received here.

The latest replies from Japan, which, it is understood, have been communicated to the United States and Netherlands Governments, are described as completely unsatisfactory, failing to meet the requirements of the oil companies.

It is also officially denied here that there has been any resumption of the textile conversations.

Rumours that a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance is under discussion are not considered worthy of comment.—Reuter.

Japan's Attitude

Tokyo, Nov. 12. A joint conference of Foreign and Navy Office officials regarding the British suggestion to give Japan naval equality under certain conditions, is still in progress.

Up to the present no decision has been reached, but official circles are of the opinion that it may not be wise for Japan to reject the plan, "although it is rather vague and will require elucidation before action can be taken."—Reuter.

FUTURE OF BELGIAN CURRENCYAPPREHENSION FELT IN LONDON

London, Nov. 12.

Despite a record gold cover, repeated ministerial declarations of the ability and determination of Belgium to remain on the Gold Standard, and an official denial of a rumoured loan by the Federal Reserve Bank, market circles here continue to view the future of Belgian currency with apprehension and nervousness.

The three months rate is at present at 55 centimes discount. Buyers are most reluctant, and bear speculation is rapidly increasing. This is revealed by the forward rates, as spot is controlled by the Belgian authorities.

Anxiety regarding the franc has eased, as M. Flaminio is believed to be a sound financier. At the same time, the recent steadiness of the franc may be largely attributed to heavy intervention by the American Exchange Fund. According to the Financial News, this is explained by the fact that America regards itself now as the centre of the gold group.

The paper suggests that the support accorded the gold currencies may be a preventive measure against further extension of the sterling area.—Reuter.

NEW CONTACTS

JAPANESE LEGATION AT KABUL OPENED

Tokyo, Nov. 12.

It is officially announced that the new Japanese Legation at Kabul was opened on November 6.—Reuter.

In the list of wreaths laid at the Cenotaph on Sunday, mention should have been made of the handsome one laid by Mr. T. G. Bennett of the R.F.A. Apple Leaf, on behalf of the Royal Fleet Auxiliary.

Mr. M. J. Quist, Consul General for the Netherlands, was successfully operated upon at the War Memorial Nursing Home yesterday morning for appendicitis. It is requested that no flowers be sent to him there.

GIRLS HOLD CAMP

WEEK-END DISCUSSIONS ON VARIOUS SUBJECTS

London, Nov. 8.

As the flames of the camp fire leaped higher and higher the group of girls brought their offering to the W. K. W. Club. Each had chosen her own gift—joyful service, loyalty, co-operation, responsibility, fun, friendship, group spirit, good citizenship and so on. As each added her symbol, the flame, which represented light, beauty, strength and spirit, blazed brighter. So ended the two-day conference of the Senior High School W. K. W. Club Conference.

On Saturday, November 10, by the courtesy of Dr. Chow Wai-cheung, Messrs. Lung Yiu-cheung, Chan Kai and Leo Mow-cher, the island of Ching I was turned over to the group of girls. Eight clubs were represented—Ying Wa, St. Stephen's, St. Paul's, Sam Kwong, Kun Kwok, Fairless, Young Chung and St. Agnes, with 38 girls in all. Of the leaders, Miss Mildred Owen, the National Girls' Work Secretary, arrived just in time for this occasion. She was able to help with suggestions for the club programme. Mrs. H. H. Sullivan of St. Paul's was responsible for the devotional services and also for the discussion on the girls' own questions about religion. This was one of the most helpful parts of the programme.

Another discussion in which the girls were most interested was the one on home, marriage and sex problems, led by Mrs. Choi Nai-sing. Miss Lam Tak-kwong and Miss Choi Wai-han acted as house mothers. Other leaders were Misses Silcock, Baxter, Pope, Ip Yik-chee, Wong Yuet-lan, Cheng Sing-tak, Kwok Wing-chun and the Y.W.C.A. Secretaries, Shui Tak-hing, Nell Elliot, Ho Yin-yu and Yung Mo-chun.

A Full Programme

The programme was as follows: Saturday afternoon.—Getting camp in order, tea, opening service (girls preparing questions), supper, fancy dress party, evening prayer.

Sunday, November 11.—morning prayers, setting up exercises, breakfast, discussion of programme with reports from Clubs. Sunday worship, discussion on programme, qualifications and duties of officers, lunch and rest, questions on family sex and marriage, questions on religious problems; Recreation ball games, hiking and cooking, outdoor supper; camp fire closing ceremony, stunts and roast.

This conference is one of the splendid results of the work of Miss Wong Yuk-moo, Secretary of Girls' Work and the Girls' Work Committee of the Hongkong Y.W.C.A. It shows the strong movement of the W. K. W. Club that has been built during her years of service.—Contributed.

TWO MEN CAUGHT

ENTER FACTORY PREMISES IN EARLY MORNING

Two unemployed men, Li Chiu alias Li Kwong-chiu, 22 years, and Wong Chung-ping, alias Wong Ping, 19 years, were brought before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday and charged with entering the Man Yuen Wearing Factory at Un Chau Street, with intent to commit a felony. Both defendants pleaded guilty to the charge and were sentenced to two months' hard labour each.

Detective-Sergeant Poyntz appeared for the prosecution and stated that defendants were caught on the ground floor of the premises at 2.45 a.m. Saturday. The first defendant had been employed there three months ago. They were apparently trying to get into the office where the money was kept.

SOUTH CHINA'S OPPORTUNISM

BADMINTON CONTROL

RECENT FORMATION OF INTERNATIONAL BODY

NINE CENTURIES REPRESENTED AT INAUGURAL MEETING

RESPONSIBLE FOR DEFEAT OF ATHLETIC

YESTERDAY'S NEEDLE MATCH FULL OF THRILLS

Opportunism was the secret of South China's victory over China Athletic in their First Division needle match on the Football Club ground yesterday. They won by the odd goal in five.

The game was full of thrills, but unfortunately there were frayed tempers as well. The opening exchanges found an Athletic player off the field through injury after a collision with Tong Kwan, of South China, who received a caution from the referee. Fung King-yu returned to the field after about five minutes' absence.

The Athletic forwards were inclined to retain the ball too long and were robbed of possession before they had time to shoot and their wing halves allowed South China's flanks too much rope. Herein lay their weakness.

By virtue of their win South China "B" move up to level pointing with their "A" eleven, but have played an extra game.

SOUTH CHINA SCORE.

The Athletic took up the offensive soon after the start and threatened when awarded a free kick close in. Au Fai, however, shot wide. A period of even exchanges then followed, but erratic shooting kept no score registered, until Yeung was sent away and from his centre Tang King-kul found the net to give South China the lead.

The Athletic almost evened matters up from the centre kick when they broke through with a determined rush, but Chui's attempt went wide. Fortunes again fluctuated and Chuck Shek-kam lobbed over the heads of several players from well back over the half-way line to score South China's second goal before Sul had a chance of recovering from a previous shot. Before the interval, however, the Athletic rallied and Ho Kar-keung sent Chan in to beat Wong Ka-kul with a cross-shot.

FURTHER TRIALS.

The teams changed over with South China holding a goal advantage, but the Athletic opened with a raid on their opponents' elated which resulted in Chan levelling the score. They continued to hold the advantage territorially for some time after this and but for their unsteadiness when with in striking distance would probably have taken the lead. Chan and Chui both narrowly missed.

When play transferred to the other end South China made the most of the opportunity their raid gave them. Lee Shek-yau sent across a fine centre from the touch and Sul stopped the ball but failed to hold it. Tang running up pushed the ball over the line to put South China ahead once more. This lead they held until the final whistle despite the game efforts of the Athletic to bring the final result to a draw. The teams were: Chinese Athletic—Sui Tin-lin; Mak Sui-hon, Wong Sik-king; Lai Kwok-chui, Chu Au-fai, Ho Chui-yin; Tang Kwong-sum, Chan Chui-wo, Ho Kar-keung, Au Ping-ming and Fung King-yu.

South China "B"—Wong Wai-kai; Chung Chi-yung, Yu Hing-yuen; Tong Kwan, Lai Tak-po, Lee

Local Cycling Records

TIME TRIALS TO BE HELD SOON

Last week-end's run of the Hongkong Cycling Club saw a few new faces, mainly as a result of the successful tourist event promoted by the Club over the previous week-end.

Owing to severe knee trouble which developed during the week, the run leader, H. A. G. Koates, was unable to attend the Sunday run, which, in consequence, was led by the Vice-captain, E. Muhna, who conducted a pleasant spin around the island, with halts at Tytan, Stanley, Repulse and Deep Water Bay. The light rain falling throughout failed to dampen the enthusiasm of those taking part.

A further party under the Captain carried out a short spin with the social section of the Club on the Mainland.

Next week-end's spin will be conducted by E. G. Tweedy, who will leave the Jordan Road Pier of the Vehicular Ferry at 9.30 a.m. for a surprise destination. Under the Hon. Secretary, L. A. Anning, the social section will leave the same rendezvous at 1.15 p.m. for Castle Peak which is the destination of the hard-riding party will be met for tea. All local enthusiasts are invited to take part in either run. Until further notice the Wednesday runs will be discontinued.

The Hon. Secretary (Mr. Anning, 23 Tai Po Road) will be pleased to receive any entries for time trials to be held with the object of establishing local records. Record certificates will be awarded to the fastest finishers. To cover feeding and other small expenditures a nominal fee of $1 will be charged.

FURTHER TRIALS.

The first run is to be held on November 25, commencing at 10 a.m. and will be over a distance of 50 miles. On December 2 a start is to be made at 9 a.m. and the distance will be 100 miles.

Full details as to course, etc. may be had on application.

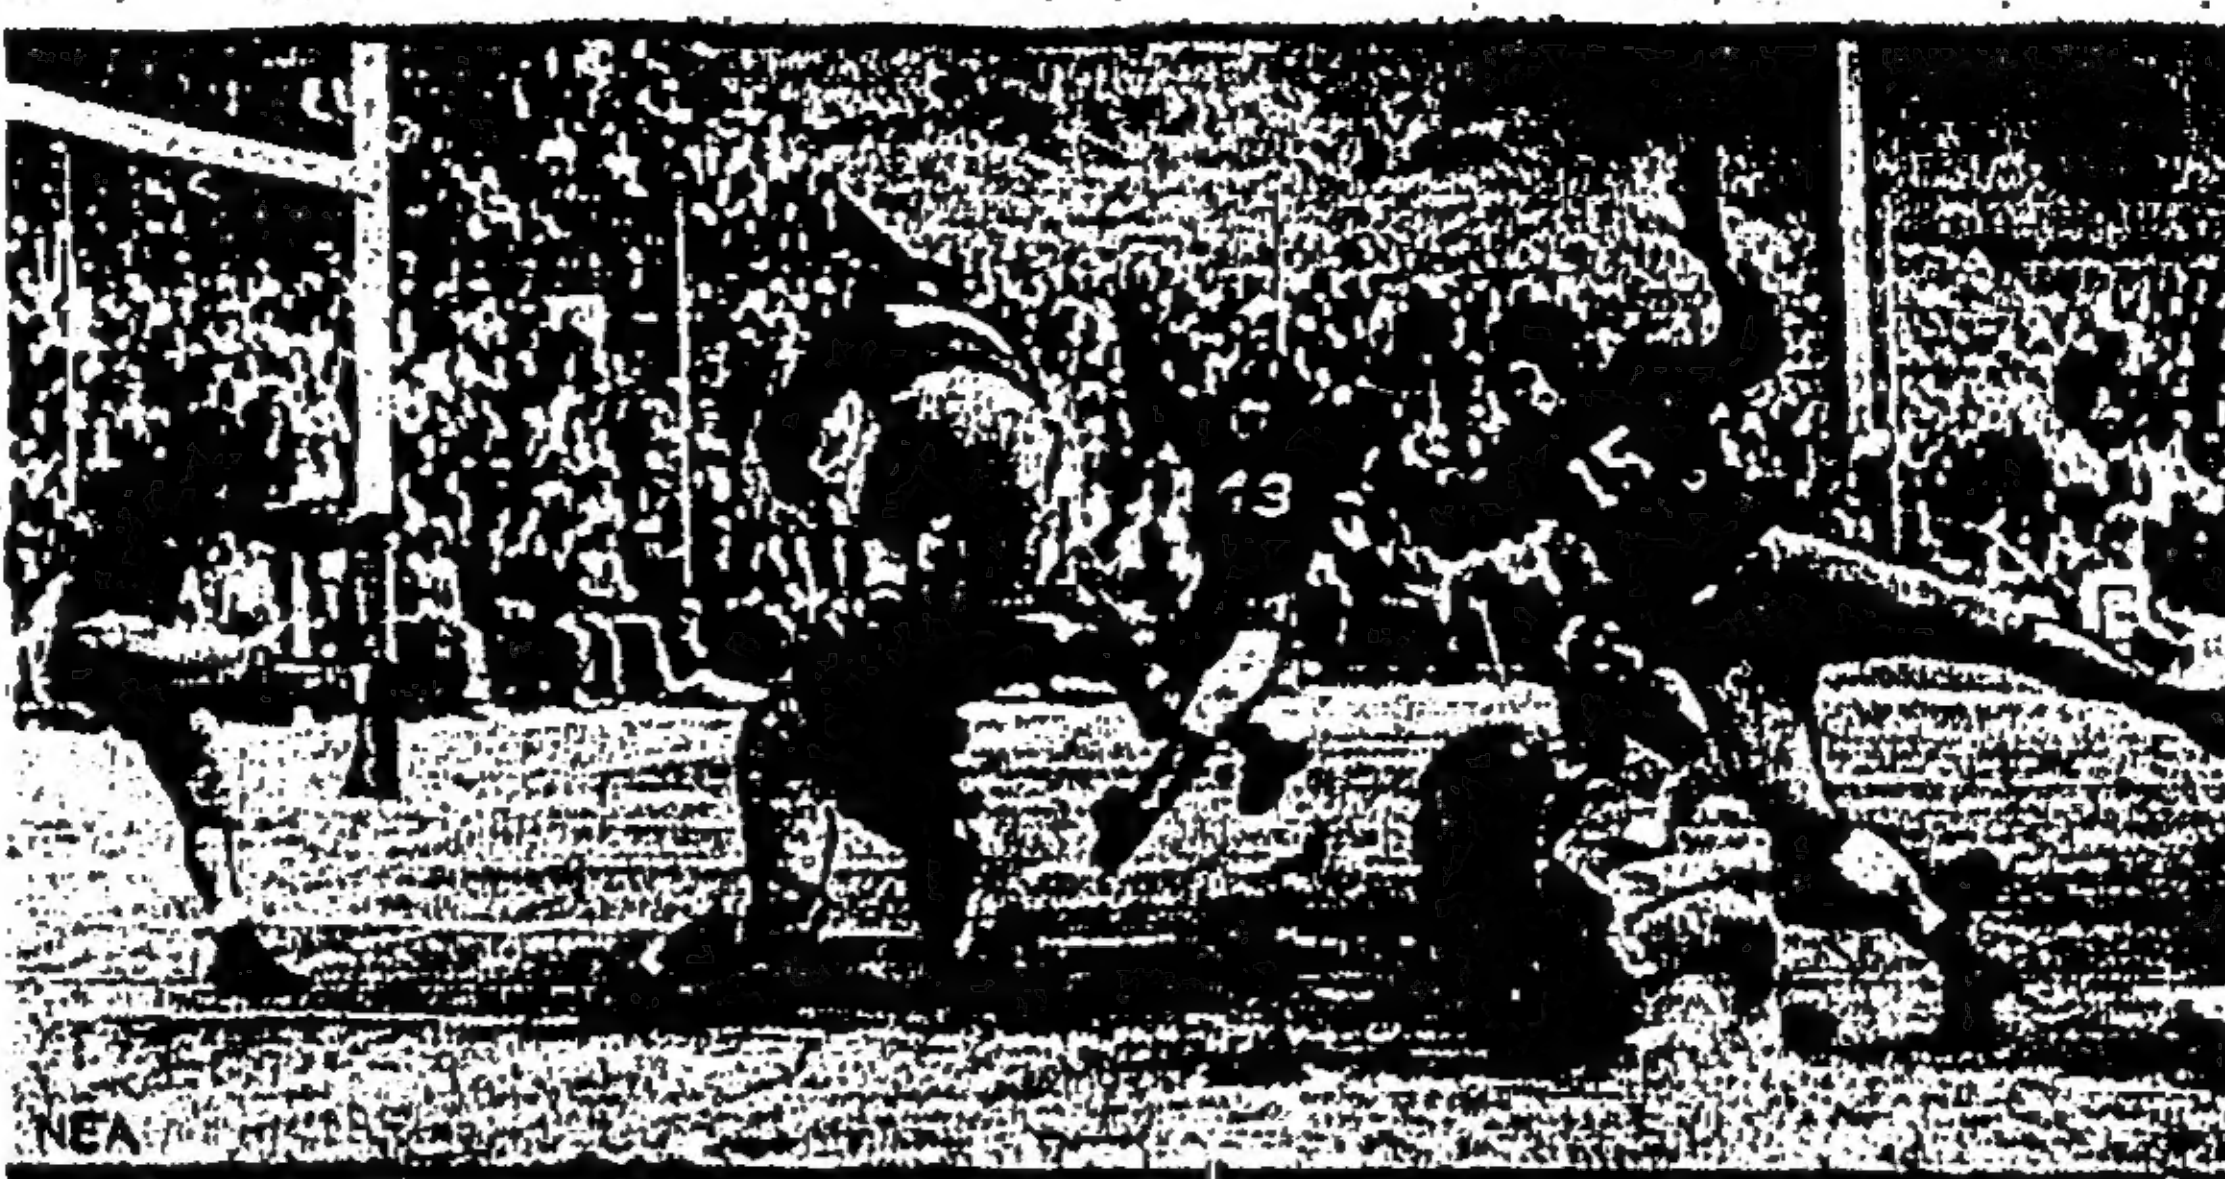

It is desired to announce that all competitors in the Tourist Time Trial actually completed the course of 50 miles. The final party were delayed for 3 hours at Tai Po owing to an accident near the 12th milestone, but eventually repairs having been successfully made, this section reached Shamshuipo at 7.30 p.m. Miss Nancy Chaine, now a Club member, is therefore in all probability the first local lady cyclist to cover the Circuit.

An attendance list and details of mileage covered by individual riders on club runs (omitting mid-week spins) has been compiled, and makes interesting reading. The following are the leading figures up to the end of October during which time 33 official runs have been held:

Rider	Attendance	Mileage
H. A. G. Koates	27	1,405
C. E. Reed	23	1,105
E. Muhna	19	1,249
E. G. Tweedy	12	831
L. A. Anning	11	547
V. W. R. Cole	10	474

Twenty other riders have less than ten attendances each.—Contributed.

Kam; Yeung Shui-yick, Lai Shui-yung, Tsang King-kul, Chuck Shek-kam and Lee Shek-yau.

Here's a remarkable action picture from the Oregon State-Stanford game at Multnomah Stadium, Portland, when Stanford triumphed over the Beavers by a lopsided 17-0 score. Norman Franklin, red-headed Oregon state halfback, has kicked from behind his own goal-line. Coming in attempting to block the kick are Topping (48) and Reynolds (15). Moscrip (24), Stanford end, appears to be resting on the shoulders of an Oregon State player.

£17,412 REALISED DURING AUGUST

London.

Football never fails to be the occasion in the cause of charity. Charges of commercialism have been levelled at the game, but never is any mention made of the good work done for charity. When an appeal for funds was made for the relief of the dependents of the Gresford Colliery disaster, football did not turn a deaf ear. Every team was ordered by the F.A. to make a collection at one of their home matches.

The results of these efforts are not yet known, but a very useful sum is certain to be forthcoming. Then, at their recent meeting, the F.A. Council subscribed £250 to the Mansion House Fund for the Gresford sufferers.

Hospitals always requiring financial assistance, can always look forward to the football season with the assurance that some money, however small, will be coming in.

ARSENAL TOP LIST.

The proceeds of the practice matches each year are devoted entirely to charity. This year it is announced that matches in August realized a total sum of £17,412 2s. 1d., all of which was distributed to charitable institutions. Glamorgan's Arsenal F.C., who attracted a crowd of about 50,000 to see them have their try out, were easily at the top of the list with £1,213. Although London clubs handed over a sum of £4,676 Tottenham Hotspur came second to Arsenal with £454.

In addition to this charity competitions are run in every country and useful contributions are made to deserving causes.

Some of the big soccer clubs have endowed beds in their local hospitals and pay for their upkeep. One well-known Third Division club in the East End of London, for instance, has at least six beds in various hospitals.

Say what they may, football's critics cannot point to any game that makes a stronger appeal to the masses of any outdoor sport in the deserving cause of charity.

Golfers' Experience

CADDIES STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Benoni (Transvaal).

A golfer who was about to alight from his car at the Van Ryn course, Benoni had a curious experience when a flash of lightning struck two caddies and killed a number of players. He had his hand on the handle of the door and was about to step out when he was almost blinded by the flash and received a severe shock which paralysed his arm and made it impossible for him to release his grip for several seconds.

He suffered no consequent ill effects. Golfers were taken unawares when the storm broke and a party of five with their two native caddies had an unnerving experience.

They had taken shelter under a tree when there was a vivid flash of lightning accompanied by a terrific report. The party was hurled in all directions and the two natives were severely burnt by the discharge. The Europeans escaped unharmed but the caddies had to be removed to Boksburg Hospital.

A number of telephone lines in Benoni, Brakpan and Springs were put out of order while half the main lines between Brakpan and Johannesburg were similarly affected.

In Benoni the greater part of the town was plunged into darkness lasting a few seconds as a result of a fault caused by the lightning. Springs had a similar experience and was in darkness for about five minutes.—Reuter.

Blow For Irish Athletics

C.N. AND C.A. CONGRESS MEETING

London.

Ireland will no longer be able to compete in big international contests and Irish athletes will have to content themselves with performing at their own meetings, as the result of a special Congress of the National Athletic and Cycling Association held in Dublin.

The meeting was called to consider the decision of the International Athletic Federation at Stockholm that the N.A. and C.A. should confine its activities to the Irish Free State and that the Northern Ireland Association should be regarded as coming within the jurisdiction of the English Association. When the Federation's ruling was put to the vote it was defeated by 31 votes to 23.—Reuter.

HOCKEY

WOMEN'S TEAM TO TOUR EGYPT

The following women's hockey team will leave England on November 16 for a fortnight tour of Egypt—a week to be spent at Cairo and a week at Alexandria. J. Ellis (Surrey and England), C. Goodman (Warwick, Midlands), G. Grimwade (Suff. East Devon), D. Morrison-Inches (Edinburgh), P. Jackson (Dorsetshire), E. McKerron (Dumfries), B. Moffatt (Glasgow), W. Neave (England), N. Oliver (Melrose), P. Snook (Herts), E. Stone (Kent), M. Robbs, E. J. Warwick (Hants), and Misses Armfield (umpire), and Miss E. J. Warwick of Peterborough, has arranged the tour.

Bowlers Practice In Jungle

SOUTH AFRICANS NOVEL TOUR

Johannesburg.

R. J. Crisp, one of the outstanding fast bowlers in the country and Theo de Klerk, one of South Africa's best all round cricketers, are to keep in practice in the African jungle. They have joined an expedition to Central Africa but as they are both keen to secure places in the South African team to tour England in 1935 they will be returning to Cape Town in the middle of the present cricket season and take part in the more important Currie Cup matches.

Before leaving Johannesburg they added to their baggage a number of cricket balls and a bat which was given to them by Syd Curlew, the South African International. So perhaps in a few weeks' time the jungle glades will be echoing to the click of leather and willow, while monkeys chatter appreciatively over a classic off-drive by de Klerk or complain at the way Crisp is tearing up the pitch.

Crisp, it will be recalled, established a world's record during the last Currie Cup season when for the second time in first-class cricket he took four wickets with four balls.—Reuter.

DUNCAN'S APPOINTMENT

Professional At Mere Country Club

London. George Duncan, the Open Golf Champion of 1920, and British Rider Cup International, has been appointed professional to the Mere Golf and Country Club, near Altringham, Cheshire. Duncan and James Braid laid out the course, which will be ready for play on January 1, 1935.

The new course is in beautiful surroundings, forming the centre of an estate of 251 acres, bordering the main Manchester-Chester road.

The eighteen holes comprise 6,500 yards and the scratch score has been set at 75. Duncan has many splendid performances to his credit, including the capturing of the British Ryder Cup team that regained the trophy from the Americans at Moor-town, Leeds, in 1929. In that match Duncan gave one of his best exhibitions of his classic style in beating Walter Hagen by the astonishing margin of ten up and eight to play.

After holding various posts, Duncan went to Wentworth, Surrey, where he remained for a number of years until he accepted the remunerative position of private golf coach to the Aga Khan.—Reuter.

The uniform to be worn by the team will give the first hint of a change in the conventional hockey attire for women, for the usual long stockings approved by the Women's Hockey Association are being discarded in favour of stockings turned down below the knee. This will be the first time an English team travelling abroad has departed from the standard dress.

It may be followed by other changes; women hockey players are anxious to wear something lighter and less bulky than the "hockey tunic" now in vogue.

CALIFORNIA STATE BANTAM CROWN

Tommy and Dado Clash on November 20

Los Angeles, Oct. 31. Young Tommy and Speedy Dado, two of the ablest Filipino fighters in the business, have been matched together in a contest for which fight fans have been waiting for.

They will clash November 20 for the California state bantam-weight crown.

It will be their fourth meeting. They first clashed in Oakland, Oct. 12, 1932, where Dado won to take the title which will again be at stake. Their next meeting was in May, 1933, when Tommy won from Dado to gain the title back again. Again, in October, last year, they met, and Tommy lost.

Tommy will be out to even the old score. He has encountered some hard luck this year, having won by a knockout from Benny Gallup, defeated Huerta Evans, lost to Lou Salien, and drawn twice with Joe Ticken.

Dado's record on the Pacific Coast has not been overly impressive either. He won from Peter Sevedra, Bobby Olivas, Lou Salien and Ticken, but previously to the last fight lost by a knockout to Ticken.—United Press.

SECOND
GOLF TESTAUSTRALIA'S WIN OVER BRITAIN

Melbourne, Nov. 12.
Australia won the second Golf Test by 2, after being all square with Britain after the first day's play.
McKay beat the Hon. Michael Scott seven and six, and Ryan added the victory for Australia by beating T. A. Bourn by four and two. Bourn clinched the test by beating J. Carnett by seven and five. J. Bourn's only win for Britain, when he beat the Australian, Jim Ferrier eight and seven, being too late to affect the result.—Reuter.

SERIAL STORY

The Clue Of The Forgotten Murder:

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, telephoned his newspaper an exclusive story about FRANK B. Bleeker, a wealthy and prominent, brought to police headquarters on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and accompanied by a pretty young woman who calls herself MARY BRIGGS, high-biker.

Next day it is learned that the man was an importer. The real Cathay demands damages and a retraction. DAN BLEEKER, junior partner of The Blade, convinced that "something is fishy," sends Morden to interview to learn all he can about Cathay.

MRS. L. THAY calls on Bleeker and asks him to come to the Palace hotel for a conference with her husband's lawyer, CHARLES FISHER. Bleeker goes.

CHAPTER VI

The door of the hotel room was opened by a tall individual whose gray eyes peered in one expectation at Dan Bleeker. "You brought him," the man said, and there was unmistakable relief in his voice.

Bleeker nodded, followed Mrs. Cathay into the room, turned to face the big man who was closing and locking the door.

"Well?" he asked.

"It was very nice of you to come," said the man in a booming voice, which had apparently been carefully cultivated to convey an atmosphere of impressive dignity.

He was a ponderous figure, somewhat heavy in the forties. He was heavily flushed and his shoulders sagged forward, as though most of his work had been done over a desk.

"I," he said, "am Charles Fisher, senior partner of the firm of Fisher, Burr and McLeedy, with offices in the First National Bank at Riverview. We handle all of Mr. Cathay's legal work. Won't you please be seated, Mr. Bleeker?"

Mrs. Cathay walked to the full-length mirror, surveyed herself quietly, turned and without a glance at Bleeker, walked through a passageway into an adjoining room. Her manner was that of one whose work has been done.

"I'll stand," Bleeker said.

"But you understand," Fisher went on in his ponderous manner, "the situation is one which may perhaps call for rather extended discussion, Mr. Bleeker. Certainly, you would hardly expect a matter of this gravity to be disposed of in a few words. I think from a legal standpoint you will readily agree."

"What do you want?" Bleeker asked.

"Mr. Cathay," said Fisher gravely, "is a very important individual in Riverview. Perhaps he sometimes overestimates his importance. That is, however, neither here nor there, nor should I care to be quoted. He has quite a bit of pride, and when he has once reached a decision he is very much inclined to stay."

"I've heard all that before," Bleeker said.

Fisher frowned. A swift flush of rage appeared on his countenance, and then he smiled slowly and gravely.

"Of course," he said, "I didn't know to what extent Mrs. Cathay had gone into the preliminaries."

"Consider that the preliminaries are all over with," Bleeker said, standing with his feet wide apart, his black smoky eyes staring steadily into the gray eyes of the big man who hulked above him. "Get down to brass tacks. What's what?"

"I am prepared to advise my client," he said, "to withdraw any libel suits and give you a complete release in return for your assurance that a retraction will be published by the newspaper."

Bleeker's voice was crisp, his manner truculent. "We'll publish this sort of a retraction," he said, "and no other. We'll publish a statement to the effect that The Blade has discovered the man who gave the name of Cathay at police headquarters was an impostor. A pickpocket who had stolen Cathay's wallet, and chose to masquerade under Cathay's name. We will publish it prominently, not as a retraction, but as an additional development that has been uncovered through the diligence of our newspaper reporters. That's our final answer. You can take it or leave it."

"I'll take it," Fisher said.

Dan Bleeker pushed past him toward the door.

"Wait a minute," Fisher told him,

Fisher frowned. A swift flush of rage appeared on his countenance.

"You'll want some sort of a receipt. Some kind of a release in full of all claims for damage."

Dan Bleeker, with his hand on the door knob, stared at Charles Fisher and shook his head slowly from side to side.

"We don't want anything from Frank B. Cathay," he said. "We're going ahead and publish that retraction in just the manner that I outlined to you. Any time Cathay thinks he can make money out of suing our newspaper, we'll show him where he can't. That goes for him and for his lawyers. Do you get that?"

Fisher frowned. "I had you brought here," he said with dignity, "so that we might arrange an amicable settlement."

"All right. We've arranged it, haven't we?" Bleeker said.

"It hasn't been very amicable so far," Fisher remarked.

"It's as amicable as it's going to be," Bleeker told him and slammed the door behind him as he stepped into the corridor.

It was the following afternoon. Dan Bleeker, at his desk, frowned irritably at Ethel West.

"What was your last report from Charles Morden?" he asked.

Ethel West picked up a shorthand notebook from before her. "You that picked Cathay's pocket and posed as Cathay and why he did it."

"Yes. What did you hear from him yesterday?"

"He telephoned about one o'clock. It was right after lunch. He said that he had a live lead, but in order to get it he had to cultivate a girl. He said that he thought it wasn't wise to mention names over the telephone, but that he'd come in to the office some time this morning or late yesterday afternoon."

"Yesterday afternoon," said Bleeker meditatively, "what was I doing on yes, that conference with Mrs. Cathay, and Cathay's lawyer."

"You disposed of the case?" she asked.

"Frightened to death," he told her. "The woman was speechless with fright. She rushed to the lawyer and got him to call the whole thing off. They tried to save their faces by making a bluff about it."

"Did you make them crawl?" she asked.

Dick Kenney nodded.

"I want to find out more about Cathay," said Bleeker. "He was registered here in the city somewhere. Have the men cover all the hotels. Find out where Cathay was registered. See if you can find out something about his business. Find out if he was here alone or if anyone was with him. And in particular try and find out more about this pickpocket business. There was a girl, a high-biker, I believe she said. Mary Briggs I think her name was. You should be able to locate her. Run down that angle of it. I want to find out where the man went when he left the police station and what he did."

"Mary Briggs probably cleared out of town just as soon as she got out of the police station," Kenney said.

"Then go out of town to look for her!" Bleeker snapped explosively.

The telephone rang. Dan Bleeker swooped down upon the receiver, held it to his ear, said, "Bleeker speaking," and then listened while the receiver made rapid, squawking noises.

"Where are you now?" he asked.

"Very well, I'll let you talk with him now," Bleeker held the receiver over toward Dick Kenney.

"Fred Nixon, who's covering headquarters," he said. "Listen to what he has to say."

Kenney took the telephone, said in a low, conversational voice, "All right, Nixon. What is it?"

Once more the receiver made a succession of squawking, metallic noises. Kenney stiffened to rigid attention. The skin about his knuckles grew white as he gripped the receiver. "Good God!" he said slowly. "Are they certain?"

There was another interval of noise from the transmitter. Then Kenney said, "We're sending some men to help you. Wait there until they come. Then start covering everything. The paper will see this thing through to a finish. You get hold of the homicide squad and let them understand we're out for blood. Do you get me? All right, just a moment then... hold the telephone."

Kenney looked over at Dan Bleeker. "Are there any instructions?" he asked.

MOTHER IS HAPPY NOW

Child eats big meals... no longer run-down or cross

Doctors know what is usually wrong when a child won't eat, is cross and weak. Intestinal absorption, occurring even when a child's habits may seem regular, poisons the system, upsets the nerves, impairs digestion... So a little Castoria is prescribed.

This marvelous preparation, which tastes so good children beg for it, gently and swiftly cleanses the system, settles the stomach and restores nerve-poise.

Then Nature does the rest. Appetite returns. The child can't get enough to eat. Disposition improves and soon the little growing body fills out and becomes sturdy and strong. Now when your child won't eat, won't play, is cross and fretful—let a little Castoria restore buoyant health. Results will surprise you.

FEWER ACCIDENTS OCTOBER ROAD FATALITIES LOWEST FOR MONTHS

Last month was noticeable for a large decrease in the number of traffic fatalities in Hongkong, according to statistics issued by the Traffic Department yesterday.

Only two of the 146 accidents that occurred in the Colony proved fatal, one person being killed on the mainland and one on the island. The island fatality occurred on October 29, when a blind man suddenly walked in front of a moving tram. Although the tram driver applied the emergency brake he was unable to bring the tram to a standstill before the man was knocked down.

The mainland fatality was caused by a private motor car. By far the largest number of accidents occurred on the island, where 46 persons were injured in 103 accidents.

Private cars, which were involved in 30 accidents, were responsible for 16 persons being injured, public cars injuring seven in 16 accidents. Nine persons were injured in motor lorry accidents, of which there were 20. Four persons were injured by motor cycles three by push cycles and two each by motor buses, trams and tricycles.

Private cars, which were involved in 16 accidents on the mainland, resulted in injury to people in all but one case. Seven people were injured by motor buses, which were involved in 13 accidents, and two persons were injured in eight accidents in which motor lorries were involved. Public cars and motor cycles injured one person each.

The total number of accidents on the mainland were a record low figure, only 42 being reported. In this, only 28 persons were injured.

HOUSEBREAKING MAN WHO HAD PREVIOUS CONVICTION

With a previous conviction for housebreaking in May this year, Mak Kim-ming, unemployed, pleaded guilty before Mr. W. M. Thomson at the Central Police Court yesterday to charges of housebreaking and theft of two leather suitcases from the residence of Mrs. Fukiko, No. 160 Hennessy Road; attempted housebreaking at No. 9 Yu Wah Street, and possession of two screw drivers.

It was stated that on the night of November 9, Detective Sergeant Fitches and a Chinese constable were attracted to Yu Wah Street by the blowing of police whistles. They proceeded to the scene and saw the defendant being chased. He ran into the stairway of No. 8 Tang Lung Street, where after a fight with another Chinese, known to the Police, he was caught.

It appears that No. 9 Yu Wah Street is the residence of folks of a battery factory nearby, and owing to a series of thefts while the folks were at work, they fixed up an alarm on the steel grille. The defendant apparently had opened the grille and set the alarm going. Two folks came on the scene and the defendant took to his heels.

A search was made at the premises where the defendant lives and pawn tickets relating to property belonging to the Japanese woman were found. One of the leather suitcases was recovered in a pawnshop, while the other had been sold to an opium dealer for two dollars.

Sergeant Fitches added there was another man involved in the case but the Police could not get him.

H. K. THEOSOPHISTS

CONCEPTS OF THE HINDU RELIGIOUS BELIEFS

At the Manuk Lodge of the Hongkong Theosophical Society on Thursday evening a public lecture was given by Mr. K. B. Valdaya, his subject being "The Conception of God in the Hindu Religion."

He began by begging his hearers to remove from their minds all preconceived ideas of the Hindu people and their religion, lest these might be such as would prevent a proper understanding of the subject. What he wished to do was to put forward for consideration in as plain a manner as possible the simple facts concerning what is perhaps the oldest religion of mankind.

To the Hindus, God is ever present: eating, sleeping, walking, all things are done in the sight of God, and without Him nothing could be. He is the life blood of Hindu society, the basis of all life.

In his relation to man God must differ, according to the varying intelligence of human beings. To those of highest intellect God appears as impersonal, infinite, omniscient, without form, and without qualities, but to others who have not reached this level of understanding the appeal of a personal God is necessary. The infinite and Almighty God is therefore conceived as a Trinity, with triple qualities, those of the Creator, the Preserver, and the Destroyer, and each of these qualities is named as a Deity, Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva. Below the Trinity of the personal God are the "Shining Ones" which correspond to the angels, in the Sanskrit called "Devaa" which is often translated as "Gods." This misconception has led to the false idea that Hinduism is a religion of many Gods, although actually the whole fabric of Hindu philosophy is based on the fact that there is only one, single Being in the Universe, controlling all its activities.

Gradation Explained.

That there are thirty-three categories of "Shining Ones" does

MINISTER DEPARTS

SIR A. CADOGAN TO VISIT SOUTH CHINA

Shanghai, Nov. 12.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, the British Minister to China, departed for Hongkong and South China by H.M.S. Falmouth this morning.

not then mean that there are thirty-three almighty Gods, but merely that there is a gradation of beings, greater than men, doing the work of the Almighty. This gradation serves a useful purpose, for people of low intelligence, who cannot at once understand the existence of the Almighty, may contact these lesser beings, and so come step by step to a realization of the Infinite.

Again, the idol worship for which Hinduism is often condemned, is accounted for thus: to those whose intelligence is advanced idol worship is unnecessary, but for those others who could not comprehend the greatness of God, however clearly it was explained, the method of symbolization was introduced. For, since God is omnipresent, he is existent in any stone, wood, or other article, which may therefore be taken as a symbol to represent him in one form or another, and gives a concrete object on which the thoughts of the unadvanced mind may be concentrated. The idols are also worshipped by the people, but those of sufficiently advanced understanding need no idol to worship.

The soul, according to Vedantic philosophy, is imperishable, and passes from body to body, changing them as a man changes suits of clothes, on its pilgrimage to the ultimate goal, which is to reach God. The Soul must realize that he is one with the Almighty. This principle, of the unity of the Soul with God is the most sublime that any system of philosophy can boast of; for when it is realized, hatred and social disruption come to an end, and the way is smoothed out to the inevitable Universal Brotherhood.

ROSE ROOM OPENING

RECORD CROWD FLOCKS TO PENINSULA GALA

Something approaching a record crowd flocked to the Peninsula Hotel on Saturday night for the re-opening of the famous Rose Room. The promise of special gala entertainment—a promise amply substantiated by the debut of the Three Chocolaters—brought a large number of patrons who overflowed from the Rose Room into the annex, and even into the Roof Garden, half of which had to be re-opened for the occasion.

Several enthusiastic encores were demanded from the Chocolaters, who provided the inter-dance entertainment. The three young coloured entertainers from the States demonstrated that, as fast and unorthodox dancers, they are among the top-notchers to visit the Colony.

Especially adept on his twinkling toes was Albert Gibson, who introduced something new to Hongkong—acrobatic tap-dancing. In their subsequent numbers these entertainers brought out a whole bagful of fast-stepping, suspense-sustaining acrobatic tricks.

ANGLO-EGYPTIAN CO-OPERATION

POLITICAL CRISIS SOLUTION

Cairo, Nov. 12.

A solution of the Egyptian political crisis was reached to-day, it is understood.

According to usually well-informed quarters, King Fuad has accepted, with slight modifications, the demands made by Nessim Pasha as a condition of his accepting the Premiership.

These demands are understood to include the annulment of the present constitution, the dissolution of Parliament and the right of the Premier to choose his own Cabinet.

Ziwar Pasha, as intermediary between the Palace and Nessim Pasha, stated that he had negotiated the agreement after several interviews with King Fuad and Nessim Pasha.

No official announcement of the agreement has yet been made, but all circles are gratified by the report of its attainment. It is considered a very desirable step towards Anglo-Egyptian co-operation. —Reuter Special.

U.S. ANTICIPATES NAVAL PARLEY BREAK-DOWN

COMPROMISE UNLIKELY

WILL JAPAN SCORN BRITISH OFFER?

GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT NO SOLUTION

SECRET PACT DENIED

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, Nov. 13, 8.41 a.m.)

WASHINGTON, NOV. 12.

ANTICIPATING THE FAILURE OF THE LONDON NAVAL CONVERSATIONS AND THE 1935 NAVAL CONFERENCE OF THE THREE MAJOR SEA POWERS, EXPERTS OF THE NAVY DEPARTMENT HERE ARE LAYING TENTATIVE PLANS FOR NEW SHIPS.

Officials do not believe that Japan will accept the British compromise proposals, which, in effect, grant Japan equality in principle in exchange for a gentlemen's agreement that Japan will not build above a specified figure. By this means the ratio of the present time would not be materially altered, according to the British scheme, but any loss of Japanese prestige through a forced inferiority would be precluded.

It is authoritatively learned that the American delegation at London has no alternative proposal to offer.

Officials doubt the likelihood of a general Anglo-Japanese alignment against the United States, pointing out that Britain could not thus protect her great commercial stakes in the Far East, with the difficult political and radical problems facing her there. They are inclined to the view that the present jockeying in London is no more than an Anglo-Japanese attempt to saddle the United States with the responsibility of breaking up the conversations, though it is not suggested that British and Japanese delegates have agreed to disagree.—United Press.

SUSPICIONS GROUNDLESS.

London, Nov. 12. An atmosphere of doubt and some tension caused by the spreading of wild rumours of an Anglo-Japanese rapprochement in naval and commercial affairs, had been noticeable lately at the naval conversations here, but was removed to-night by a statement made by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Premier of Great Britain.

The unpleasant suggestion of international bribery at the naval conversations has been removed, and the American delegates, it seems, are relieved.

Categorical denial was given by Mr. MacDonald, this evening to rumours current in the United States that alongside the naval conversations in London there was "intense, secret economic and political activity" between the British and the Japanese parties.

The Prime Minister sharply denied that the Japanese had made the United Kingdom a secret offer of concessions with regard to the Japanese and Manchukuo oil markets, and that both sides were considering the question of Japanese competition with Britain in the textile market and the possibility of a compromise there.

NO SECRECY.

Mr. MacDonald, in an authorised statement, emphasised that the American representatives at the London conversations had been kept informed of what passed between the Japanese and British delegates. The Japanese, he added, had been similarly in-

Washington, Nov. 12.

Proposals for the building of two giant airships to replace the lost Akron and Los Angeles, an aircraft carrier of 15,000 tons, and a completely new type of cruiser with a flying deck, were made before the Aviation Commission today by Congressman Vinson, author of navy legislation and a supporter of "big navy" programmes.

It is understood that the proposal, which has created great interest, has the approval of the Navy.

Flemington, N.J., Nov. 12.

When Richard B. Hauptmann, charged with the kidnapping and murder of the Lindbergh baby, faces trial here, one of the prosecution's witnesses will be Miss Betty Gow, the Scottish nurse-maid who was left in charge of the child at the Lindbergh home on the night of the kidnapping.

Miss Gow put the baby to bed in the nursery, she told police, and then left him sleeping. It was she who discovered that he had been taken from his bed, and apparently carried off through an open nursery window.

Miss Gow was subjected to a grueling examination by police investigators and there were dark allegations of cruel methods employed in attempting to extract from her information which she did not possess.

She has since gone home to Scotland and has been called from Glasgow to Flemington to attend the trial.

No definite date has been set for the hearing, but Hauptmann has been in New Jersey ever since his extradition from New York almost a month ago.

Geneva, Nov. 12.

The general situation in China as regards opium and narcotics will be considered at the nineteenth session of the Opium Advisory Committee of the League of Nations on November 16.

It is gathered that the Chinese Government has communicated to the League a series of regulations which have recently been adopted, virtually establishing an opium monopoly in the provinces of Hupeh, Honan, Anhwei, Kiangsi, Hunan, Fukien, Chokiang, Shensi and Kiangsu.

The new regulations will provide for the suppression of the trade in opium within six years and mark an evident desire on the part of China to suppress opium smoking, the clandestine manufacture of narcotics and the illicit traffic in high power drugs.

The Committee will also discuss the clandestine narcotic traffic out of Manchukuo into North China and the closing down of secret drug factories in China, as well as concessions in foreign settlements and leased territories.—Reuter.

High army circles are disconcerted at the delay in naming a new Chief of Staff or the announcement of the reappointment of General Douglas MacArthur, whose term expires on November 20.

Several high army commands are due for a change, but no question of the Chief of Staff's identity is settled.

The Secretary for War, Mr. George H. Dern, has recommended the reappointment of General MacArthur, but the Postmaster-General, Mr. James A. Farley, is reported to have been urging the consideration of others for the post, including Major-General Dennis E. Nolan, Major-General Hugh A. Drum, and Major-General Malin Craig.

It is reported, furthermore, that Mr. Henry Stimson, former Secretary of State, recently recommended to President Roosevelt the appointment of Major-General Frank R. McCoy.—United Press.

"If a man subscribed sixpence every week for eight months in the year, he might win once in 68 years," was the Liberal argument in the House of Commons to-day where supporters of the Betting Lotteries Bill were attempting to prove to the man-in-the-street that where football betting pools were concerned the book-maker is on a certainty, and the rake off is enough to land the chief sponsors of the pools in the House of Lords, if they have social ambitions.

One speaker calculated that 5,000,000 people contributed £250,000 every week to these pools, which amounted to £9,000,000 in a season. Of this huge sum the promoters of the pools pocketed nearly one third for expenses and profits.—Reuter Special.

AGED MOTHER'S PLEA

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, November 12, 8.41 a.m.)

Washington, Nov. 12.

The Supreme Court here to-day ordered the Chief Warden of San Quentin Penitentiary to show cause in forty days why the noted prisoner, Tom Mooney, should not be allowed to ask for a writ of habeas corpus in an effort to secure his freedom.

Mooney, it will be recalled, was sentenced to life imprisonment some years ago following a bomb outrage during a parade in San Francisco when Communists were alleged to have organised an attack. Several persons were killed.

Mooney, together with two others, was sentenced to prison, but later one of those accused with him made statements which, it was believed, exonerated Mooney. The authorities, however, refused to give him his freedom or a chance to fight his case again.

It was a plank in the platform of Mr. Upton Sinclair, who contested the California governorship, that Mooney should be given a new trial.

Last year Mrs. Mary Mooney, 85-year-old mother of the prisoner, was received by President Roosevelt. She said: "I wish you'd do your utmost to help my boy. He's innocent." President Roosevelt replied: "I feel sure that because so many people believe he's innocent there must be some reason for believing in his innocence."

Since then agitation has continued and the Washington Supreme Court's ruling is the latest chapter of Mooney's ten year fight for freedom.—United Press.

FRANCE HONOURS DAUGHTER

CEREMONY AT CAUSEWAY BAY

FRENCH NAVAL GUARD ATTENDS

In a colourful setting, with unexpected pomp and ceremony, which, imposing and impressive to the last degree, assuredly demonstrated how well France can honour citizens who deserve well of her, an official investiture was held at the Institution of St. Paul de Chartres at Causeway Bay this morning, by which Melanie Suss, Alsatian-born Mother Provincial in charge of the French Hospital, was created a Chevalier of the Legion of Honour.

The ceremony was held in the presence of Lady Peel, wife of H.E. the Governor, a number of French and British officers, Mrs. Henry Valtorta and Desvigniers, medical men interested in the work of Mother Suss and the Hospital, and the Catholic clergy and missionaries.

When H.E. Rear-Admiral Richard French, Commander-in-Chief, arrived to make the investiture, he was with the Consul, M. Soulange Telsens, received by the Mother Superior of the convent and conducted through the lines of schoolchildren into the square square gaily beflagged, before the Chapel. The portico of this imposing building with its carpeted flight of steps, was the position of vantage from which Her Ladyship and group of officers and high Church dignitaries viewed the ceremony.

A Naval Guard of Honour from the French flagship presented arms to the Commander-in-Chief, and from Convent gardens beyond the flagstaff's hand rendered the Marseillaise.

Shing Mun Wolfram Mine Raid

EMPLOYEE WOUNDED

The Shing Mun Valley district again figures in police crime records to-day, the latest affair being an armed robbery in which the licensee of a wolfram mine was shot dead.

The tragic happening occurred last night at about 8 o'clock, when a number of robbers armed with automatics entered premises occupied by Wong Ping, licensee of the mine, and ransacked the place.

In the course of a melee following resistance to the intruders, Wong Ping was murdered, being shot with a revolver, while Chun Nui, an employee of Wong's was wounded.

Altogether, it is believed that seven men took part in the raid on the premises, and all got away, taking some money with them. The police now have the matter in hand.

STORY OF ATTACK

A more detailed report of the affair, supplied to the police by Au Kit, accountant of the Hui Li Mining Co., of Needle Hill, Shing Mun, states that at about 8 o'clock last night he was writing accounts when three men entered the office, which was also used as living quarters. ## U.S. URGED TO GUARD OIL SUPPLY

BIG PRODUCERS MAY CO-OPERATE

EXHAUSTION OF RESERVES NEAR?

Washington, Nov. 1.
Crisis in the oil industry may
lead to joint action by California,
Texas and Oklahoma to impose
coordinated state control in place
of proposed strict federal regulation.

The tri-state project has figured
in informal discussions between interested Oklahoma and Californians. Whether Texas has been brought into the preliminary
conversations is not known here.
The Secretary of Interior Mr.
Harold I. Ickes has told a congressional committee that state
laws are failing to safeguard the
nation's oil reserves and that a federal conservation policy must
be imposed.

Mr. Ames L. Beatty, chairman of the Oil Code Planning and Coordination Committee, disputed
Mr. Ickes' statement. He said the industry urgently required stabilization, but Mr. Beatty felt conservation was of secondary importance, explaining that there was no imminent danger of petroleum
reserves being exhausted.

Mr. Ickes warned that the nation's oil reserves were limited.
Other witnesses said reserves
would be exhausted in 15 years at
present production levels.
"The fact cannot be contradicted,"
he said, "that the United States is using its oil reserves at
a rate which is three times as rapid as that of the rest of the world. The result will be that we'll have an oil shortage before
one exists in any other country."

Persons who agree with Mr.
Ickes believe oil could become a
most effective medium of foreign
pressure in dealing with the United States if this country's reserves were depleted. The United States is more nearly motorized
than any other nation. Individual dependence upon automotive
transportation would make the
people generally keenly aware of
any foreign combination's efforts
to increase the price of petroleum
and its products. The motoring
public remembers the most recent
instance of that kind of operation
when Great Britain's Stephenson
Plan for restriction of rubber production sent tyre prices sky high.

PERMANENT POLICY.
"There is need of a permanent policy," Mr. Ickes contended. "It must be one that will be effective
not only during periods of scarcity
but also during periods when oil
imports must be encouraged."

"Acting by itself and within its
own limits of authority no state
can protect itself from the influence of uncontrolled drilling and
production in another state."

The suggested California-Oklahoma-Texas combination recognizes the weight of his argument that
no state can be effective alone.
But it is argued that if these three
leading producers join in uniform
regulations which were strictly enforced the desirable ends of regulation could be achieved and control
would remain vested in the state
for whatever profit or advantage
could be obtained.

Bureau of Mines figures for 1932
show that those three states produced 643,850,000 barrels of oil.
Other principal producers were:
New York, 3,508,000; Pennsylvania,
12,412,000; Ohio, 4,664,000;
West Virginia, 3,876,000; Kentucky,
6,287,000; Illinois, 4,673,000; Kansas, 34,848,000; Wyoming, 13,418,
000; Louisiana, 21,897,000, and Arkansas 12,051,000.

In preliminary discussion of the California-Texas-Oklahoma combination it has been contended
that joint action by those states
would be a controlling factor in the oil industry. No formal action

SOME OF THE USES OF VINEGAR

VINEGAR will cleanse a slimy
sponge, or, if used in the bath,
it banishes aches and pains.
Coloured garments do not run in the wash if first steeped in water
to which vinegar has been added.
Hard water may be softened by vinegar for rinsing the hair. Fried food is never sodden if a little vinegar is added to the fat before it bubbles. White vinegar added to the water in which eggs are boiled,
keeps them firm and unbroken.

Fewer eggs are needed in cake-
making if a teaspoonful of vinegar
is mixed with the other ingredients.
In housework, also, vinegar is most useful. Windows remain clean if
a few drops are added to the washing water, and flies avoid them.
Hot vinegar removes paint marks,
and linoleum will not crack if
cleaned with oil and vinegar in equal parts. Moistened stove polish
with vinegar, instead of water, and
a gentle rubbing will produce a bright polish, while a few drops of vinegar, burnt on a hot shovel, remove all traces of the smell of stale
smoke from a room.

BLOOD FEUD ENDED

A BALKAN STATE OF PEACE

An enthusiastic account of how
in ten years Albania has been re-cued from a state of barbarism in which a quarter of the annual deaths were due to blood-feuds was
given recently by a noted traveller
on his return to London from a visit to Albania.

Credit for bringing peace and
order to Albania he gives to King
Zog.

He set up a British Commandant-
General of the gendarmerie six
years ago, with close on 3,000 gen-darmes, all picked men. The leader
was Major-General Sir Jocelyn
Percy, formerly of the British Army.

Under the direction of General
Percy, and linked by a modern telephone system, the gendarmes have penetrated every corner of the country and have put a stop to feud
killings.

LEGISLATION INVALID?

BIG BUSINESS FACES LOSS

Washington, Nov. 6.
New Deal policies are meeting old deal arguments before the Supreme Court in a way that may make the session the most momentous in the history of the court.

Several cases of utmost importance have already been carried to the court. New appeals vital to present day governmental trends
are expected to rise before the term
ends next Spring.

Outstanding of New Deal policies
to come to the court are those involving the oil control provision of
the National Industrial Recovery
Act and gold legislation.

The court last spring decided to
hear argument in an appeal involving the validity of the oil production control regulations of the Interior Secretary, Mr. Harold L.
Ickes, and the sections of the N.I.R.A. under which they were issued. The appeal was taken by the government from the ruling of a Texas federal district judge that they were invalid. The government obtained a delay in the decisive issue, a move that was interpreted by some as indicating a fear
of facing the issue.

Since then the Fifth Circuit
Court of Appeals in two other cases
has held the regulations valid and
the producing companies which sought the test have appealed. The tribunal was expected to consider
them at the same time it hears the government's appeal.

The government's attitude toward these questions is perhaps
best indicated by the fact that Mr.
Ickes sought revision of the oil
control law at the last session of Congress, and failed.

PROTECTING DOLLAR.

Of even greater importance to
the administration's policies is an attack on the law and regulations
devaluing the dollar in terms of gold. This case involves the right of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad
to meet its interest payments on a $1,000 bond in currency at the old
rate of value of gold. It raises issues which, when resolved, will affect billions of dollars of indebtedness carrying the promise of
payment in gold of the weight and fineness per dollar that prevailed at
the time the debt was contracted.
In the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad bond test the company will be obliged to pay more than $38 in currency to meet a $22.50 interest
payment if devaluation were held
constitutional.

Of importance paralleling the
devaluation case is an appeal attacking the law and regulation forbidding gold hoarding and making
the offence punishable by heavy

NO APPROVAL.

Both cases come to the court
with the support of Lower tribunals for the law. The New York Court of Appeals, one of the
admittedly great judicial bodies of
the country, approved devaluation.

The New York Federal courts
sanctioned anti-hoarding regulation.

These cases are considered by those familiar with the court to presage a flood of cases involving administration policies and so-called
liberal or progressive legislation which has been enacted either
with or without the administration's approval.

Major legislation thus likely to
face Supreme Court tests include
the Norris-LaGuardia Act restricting the issuance of injunctions in
Farm Mortgage Moratorium Act,
recently declared invalid by a Judge in Baltimore, and laws ap-

The Clue Of The Forgotten Murder:

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, telephoned his newspaper an exclusive story about FRANK B. Cathay of Riverview, a wealthy and prominent, brought to police headquarters on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and accompanied by a young woman who calls herself MARY BRIGGS, high-biker.

Next day it is learned that the man was an impostor. The real Cathay demands damages and a retraction. DAN BLECKER, junior publisher of The Blade, convinced that "something is fishy," sends Morden to Riverview to learn all he can about Cathay.

Mrs. L. TRAY calls on Blecker and asks him to come to the Palace hotel for a conference with her husband's lawyer, CHARLES FISHER. Blecker goes.

CHAPTER VI

The door of the hotel room was opened by a tall individual whose gray eyes peered in eager expectation at Dan Blecker. "You brought him," the man said, and there was unmistakable relief in his voice.

Blecker nodded, followed Mrs. Cathay into the room, turned to face the big man who was closing and locking the door.

"Well?" he asked. "It was very nice of you to come," said the man in a booming voice, which had apparently been carefully cultivated to convey an atmosphere of impressive dignity.

He was a ponderous figure, somewhere in the forties. He was heavily fleshed and his shoulders sagged forward, as though most of his work had been done over a desk. "I," he said, "am Charles Fisher, senior partner of the firm of Fisher, Harr and McLeod, with offices in the First National bank at Riverview. We handle all of Mr. Cathay's legal work. Won't you please be seated, Mr. Blecker?"

Mrs. Cathay walked to the full-length mirror, surveyed herself quietly, turned and without a glance at Blecker, walked through a passageway into an adjoining room. Her manner was that of one whose work has been done.

"I'll stand," Blecker said. "Some kind of a release in full of all claims for damage." Dan Blecker, with his hand on the door knob, stared at Charles Fisher and shook his head slowly from side to side.

"We don't want anything from Frank B. Cathay," he said. "We're going ahead and publish that retraction in just the manner that I outlined to you. Any time Cathay thinks he can make money out of suing our newspaper, we'll show him where he can't. That goes for him and for his lawyers. Do you get that?"

Fisher frowned. "I had you brought here," he said with dignity, "so that we might arrange an amicable settlement." "All right. We've arranged it, haven't we?" Blecker said. "It's amicable as it's going to be," Blecker told him and slammed the door behind him as he stepped into the corridor.

It was the following afternoon. Dan Blecker, at his desk, frowned irritably at Ethel West. "What was your last report from Charles Morden?" he asked.

Ethel West picked up a shorthand notebook from before her. "You talked with him personally day before yesterday, didn't you?" "Yes. What did you hear from him yesterday?"

"He telephoned about one o'clock. It was right after lunch. He said that he had a live lead, but in order to get it he had to cultivate a girl. He said that he thought it wasn't wise to mention names over the telephone, but that he'd come in to the office some time this morning or late yesterday afternoon."

"Yesterday afternoon," said Blecker meditatively, "what was I doing?" "You were at a conference with Mrs. Cathay and Cathay's lawyer," she asked.

"Frightened to death," he told her. "The woman was speechless with fright. She rushed to the lawyer and got him to call the whole thing off. They tried to save their faces by making a bluff about it."

"Did you make them crawl?" she asked.

"I'll take it," Fisher said. Dan Blecker pushed past him toward the door.

"Wait a minute," Fisher told him.

"You'll want some sort of a receipt. I just wanted to make certain that they understood what our position was." "Do you suppose that was because of something Morden uncovered?" "You can't tell. It wasn't something that affected Cathay so much as it was something that affected his wife."

"She's the type who's been in many a tight fix before," Ethel West said. "There's a woman who doesn't let her left hand know what her right hand does."

Dan Blecker frowned meditatively at the carpet. "Ring Dick Kenney," he said. "Tell him that I want him to come in here for a conference."

"Anything else?" "Not unless Morden telephones. I want to talk with him if he reports. Tell him to come in to see me if he can leave the case long enough."

Ethel West strode from Blecker's private office. A few minutes later Dick Kenney entered.

"That Cathay business," said Blecker. "I want some action on it."

"But I understood the whole matter had been dropped," Kenney said, his forehead puckered with a puzzled frown.

"Cathay's dropped it," Blecker snapped. "We haven't."

"What do you want done?" "I want that lead followed up. The angle of finding out who it was that picked Cathay's pocket and posed as Cathay and why he did it."

"But I thought that was just the angle we played to cover our retraction."

"It was, and we're going ahead with it."

Dick Kenney nodded. "I want to find out more about Cathay," said Blecker. "He was registered here in the city somewhere. Have the men cover all the hotels. Find out where Cathay was registered. See if you can find out something about his business. Find out if he was here alone or if anyone was with him. And in particular try and find out more about this pick-pocket business. There was a girl, a high-biker, I believe she said. Mary Briggs. I think her name was. You should be able to locate her. Run down that angle of it. I want to find out where the man went when he left the police station and what he did."

"Mary Briggs probably cleared out

MOTHER IS HAPPY NOW

Child eats big meals... no longer run-down or cross

DOCTOR, SHE WON'T EAT, WON'T PLAY, SHE'S RUN-DOWN AS YOU CAN SEE, NERVOUS AND CROSS. WHAT IS WRONG?

NOW YOU'RE HUNGRY FOR FOOD, NEVER CROSS OR FRETFUL. MOTHER'S HEALTHY, HAPPY GIRL.

HOW SHE HAS IMPROVED! WHAT IN THE WORLD HAVE YOU DONE TO HER? SHE LOOKS SO MUCH Livelier AND HEALTHIER.

SAVE HER CASTORIA ON DOCTOR'S ORDER. IT'S MARVELOUS! NO MORE CROSS, FRETFUL SPELLS. SHE PLAYS ALL DAY AND EATS LIKE A LITTLE BEAR!

NOTHING SERIOUS, JUST GIVE HER A LITTLE CASTORIA TOMORROW MORNING.

Doctors know what is usually wrong when a child won't eat, is cross and weak. Intestinal absorption, occurring even when a child's habits may seem regular, poisons the system, upsets the nerves, impairs digestion... So a little Castoria is prescribed.

This marvelous preparation, which tastes so good children beg for it, gently and swiftly cleanses the system, settles the stomach and restores nerve-poise.

Then Nature does the rest. Appetite returns. The child can't get enough to eat. Disposition improves and soon the little growing body fills out and becomes sturdy and strong. Now when your child won't eat, won't play, is cross and fretful—let a little Castoria restore buoyant health. Results will surprise you.

WAR GAMES IN EUROPE

MARTIAL SPIRIT GOES ABROAD

NATIONS ARE "READY"

London, Nov. 6. Europe, thinking, talking and fearing war, also played at war this year more extensively than ever before.

Military, aerial and in some cases naval manoeuvres have been carried out by almost every nation that boasts any kind of war machinery.

Curiously, in almost every case, forces assigned to the job of attack or invasion have gained objectives with comparative ease. The dice were loaded that way, admittedly.

Attacking forces were given considerable superiority over defenders. To have guardians of the homeland overwhelmed served to bolster the conviction of the populace that they are at the mercy of hostile neighbours. Governments thus have additional popular support in their campaigns for new, additional and improved war weapons.

SILENT BOMBERS.

Some of these new weapons, which may figure in wars of the future are: The ultimate terror of air power, a noiseless airplane, capable of swooping silently through the night sky, approach unsuspected, presence unrevealed. British air ministry experts have watched demonstrations of such an airplane, inaudible at 2,500 feet; and a "flying tank." In other words, an airplane mounting comparatively heavy calibre quick firing field guns.

A French 75 millimetre quick firing gun has been successfully and accurately fired from the wings of a French plane.

French engineers suggest the possibility of building huge towers.

Nils Asther is the latest film star to desert Hollywood for London.

6,000 feet high, six times the altitude of the Eiffel tower, with platforms at different heights from which fighting airplanes could be launched. The airplanes could be housed permanently on the platforms, in time of danger, ready to sweep upon enemy raiders at a moment's notice, without the necessity at first laboriously gaining the required altitude.

DEFENDERS OVERWHELMED.

For the first time in history Great Britain carried out combined army, navy and Royal air force manoeuvres, over a portion of Yorkshire, designed chiefly to afford practice in inter-communication between the three services. Forces of "Britannia," with no warships and only six airplanes, were overwhelmed easily by an in-

TURKEY RESENTS BULGARS' CLAIM

Istanbul, Nov. 5.

"Our patience has certain limits which must not be overstepped," the newspaper Zaman declared in an article which, characteristically for the tension existing between Turkey and Bulgaria, is being reproduced by the entire press of Istanbul.

Commenting on an article, published in a Bulgarian paper, in which it had been said "Thrace is ours by right and it will be re-incorporated in the Bulgarian fatherland," Zaman protested hotly.

The claim was not perturbing Turkey, the paper continued, as it was known that the Bulgarians were never very clever in the field of foreign policy.

One day, however, they might commit a "folly." It should be useful, therefore, to warn them, that—alluding to the Greco-Turkish war—Turkey once, within two weeks accomplished the miracle of expelling "a whole world of enemies."—United Press.

vading force from "Nordania," backed by 43 warships and several squadrons of airplanes.

France's "Blue" army, simulating an invasion of France via Switzerland, gained many successes against a weaker "red" defending army.

Italy, Switzerland, Belgium and Holland concentrated manoeuvres on testing the mobility of their military units.

All four countries specialise in bicycle troops. Holland mounts light machine guns on bicycles. Italy mounts machine guns on motorcycles. Italian cycling troops, during manoeuvres over rough country, up hills and down dales, equalled cavalry in reaching destinations.

BELGIUM'S FRONT LINE.

Belgian "Chasseurs Ardennais," bicycle troops constantly stationed along the frontier, are equipped with explosives to blow up roads and hold up any advancing horde temporarily, pending arrival of reinforcements and mobilisation of the army, an operation which would require from six hours to four days. Belgium is prepared for surprise attack, without a formal declaration of war.

Infantry and heavy artillery still are counted upon for long-drawn-out struggles, but military manoeuvres of the past summer indicate general belief that any European war that may break out will be sudden and unexpected, and that the nation with the most mobile units in such a fight will gain considerable initial advantage.

GERMAN EFFICIENCY.

Large scale military manoeuvres were not held in Germany this year, officially because it was feared that due to the prolonged drought deploying troops might start forest and prairie fires. However widespread manoeuvres were carried out in small units, so organised that at various times almost every buck private in the ranks was called upon to assume temporary leadership of fairly large bodies of troops. All performed notably, confirming the impression that the German Reichswehr is actually an army of sergeants commanded by lieutenants.

Many European nations carried out extensive air raid manoeuvres, especially designed to train civilian populations in the use of gas masks, in the necessity of seeking shelter and in treatment of gas burns. Belgium even built temporary anti-aircraft shelters to demonstrate to the populace of Brussels.

The British government has postponed, at least temporarily, the issuance of an elaborate safety code for civilians during air raids. Mr. Stanley Baldwin announced in July that such a code would be drafted and published. Then a Cabinet sub-committee, after careful consideration, decided issuance of such a code might mislead the public into the belief that war was imminent.

According to authoritative British opinion war is not actually imminent, but most European nations will be ready for it, at least mechanically and technically, if it comes.—United Press.

DIVORCE MUDDLE

REFORM SADLY NEEDED IN U.S.

FORTY-SEVEN VARIETIES

Chicago, Nov. 7.

There are 48 states in the United States and 47 different varieties of divorces, the American Legislators' Association discovered in an exhaustive survey just made public. The survey ended with a conclusion that only five states agree on what constitutes grounds for divorce.

"The whole situation represents as mad a mess of conflicting ideas and ideas as exist anywhere in our statute books," it was announced.

The nation's divorce laws run from one extreme to the other.

In Nevada, with its Reno mecca for disillusioned mates, only six weeks' residence is required. After that brief sojourn, one can receive his or her decree within 24 hours and marry again on the way out of the courthouse.

But in South Carolina when you're married you usually stay married. It takes a special state-law to free any spouse, even though the other party may be a drunkard, an adulterer, a maniac or a criminal. Court divorces don't exist.

In 19 states, parties involved in divorce cases are permitted to remarry at once. In 26 other states only the person suing for divorce is given that right.

In South Dakota a convicted adulterer—convicted on divorce hearing evidence—is prohibited from marrying again during the lifetime of his ex-wife. In New York state, the same law prevails unless the defendant has special permission from the court.

Pennsylvania and Tennessee forbid an adulterer from marrying "the other woman in the case" during the lifetime of his ex-wife. The same situation exists in the cases of women defendants found to have been guilty of adultery.

Commenting upon the popularity of easily obtained Mexican divorces, the Legislators' Association said that 2,500 Americans obtained decrees in Mexico last year, but

MILLIONS FROM ROAD TRAVEL

REVENUE £3,000,000 UP
IN 9 MONTHS

Taxation of road vehicles in Great Britain in the nine months ended August 31 this year produced over £3,000,000 more than in the corresponding period of last year.

The Ministry of Transport announces in a return that the gross amount received in payment for such licences in that period was that Nevada still retained its lead.

"A simple, uniform law is the theoretical answer to this hodge-podge of formulae now existing," said Dr. Charles G. Vernier, of Stanford University, who helped compile the survey. "This agreement does not seem attainable in the near future, but without striving for immediate unification of the laws, much improvement can be obtained in many states with very little effort."—United Press.

The total number of motor vehicles, excluding tractors and trade licences, was approximately 2,358,790, compared with 2,241,033. Mechanically propelled road vehicles registered for the first time in August, number 19,523, compared with 17,442 in August, 1933.

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

The Mills Brothers sang to a distinguished audience on a First National stage, during the production of "Twenty Million Sweethearts," the radio romance which is scheduled to open at The Alhambra Theatre on Saturday, with Pat O'Brien, Dick Powell and Ginger Rogers in the featured roles. While the quartet's famous number, "Oh, I Heard Yes, I Heard," was recorded by the cameras, listeners gathered from all round the First National lot. Other members of the cast, although not on call, were present including Grant Mitchell, Allen Jenkins, Joseph Hawthorne, Joan Wheeler and Henry O'Neill, as well as many other famous actors of the First National Studios who had heard the Mills Brothers were going to sing for the pictures. The four boys, with their guitar, sing and play for the screen in their imitable way. Close-ups show how the almost unbelievable orchestra music is produced by simply blowing through cupped hands. The Mills Brothers furnish one of the thrilling numbers in this comedy romance that is filled with specialities. The picture is based on the story by Paul FINDER Moss and Harry WALD which was adapted to the screen by Warren DOFF and Harry SAUBER. Ray ENRIGHT directed the picture. The catchy air sung by Powell and Miss ROGERS are by that ace song writing team of Warren and Dublin.

"Chained"

Sounding the modern note of intimacy and searching psychological reaction typical of the Noel Coward period, one of the most important pictures of the year at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer boasts a cast of only four major players. And while the cast of "Chained" is small, it is also potent. Clark Gable and Joan Crawford are co-starred, with Otto KRUGER and Stuart ERWIN in support. The film is showing at the Queen's Theatre. There are other players of note on the official sheet, but the modern story deals primarily with these four. Written especially for the screen and for the co-stars, as is the present trend, by Edgar SELWYN, noted director and producer, the photo story picks up the life thread of a wealthy shipping magnate, Otto Kruger, and the girl with whom he is enamoured, Joan Crawford. With no break in either physical or dramatic movement, it sweeps from the skyscraper to shipboard, where Joan meets and later falls in love with a young South American rancher, Clark Gable, who is returning with his friend, Stuart Erwin from a vacation in the States. Quickly introduced, the characters' lives, in juxtaposition with one another, are followed against a constantly changing background. They are photographed in private and in crowds, but no other characters cross the main thread of the story. Like the general treatment, the ending also bears the stamp of the modern. Noel Coward influence. In one of the most dramatic moments of the story, the three discuss the decision, which is profoundly to change the course of their personal lives, quietly over a cup of morning coffee. Other characters who appear briefly but impressively are Una O'Connor, Marjorie Gateson,

"Grand Canary"

Warner Baxter heads the strong cast with Jesse L. Lasky brings A. J. Cronin's best seller novel, "Grand Canary," to the screen of the King's Theatre on Wednesday. In his second vehicle as a full-fledged star, Baxter portrays the role of the eminent young doctor and scientist who is the principal character in the magnificent love story and the gripping drama of regeneration. Early in the picture, Baxter boards a ship at Liverpool bound for the Canary Islands. His nerves are shattered, his life apparently wrecked because the world regards him as a murderer, misunderstanding his efforts to save three dying patients by inoculating them with a serum he has developed. Through the strategy of political enemies the cases were turned over to him too late and death resulted. On the voyage he meets, among other passengers, Lady Mary Fielding, portrayed by Madge Evans. He confesses his story to her. They are drawn to one another and fall in love. Neither will yield to the desire in their hearts, however, because she is married. Arriving in the Canary Islands, Baxter hears of a yellow fever epidemic that is raging inland and sets up a temporary hospital in an old hacienda. Madge Evans goes to him there to confess her love, but he finds she has contracted the dread fever. Through anxious hours, he finally conquers the fever and she lives. Then he plunges into the epidemic and checks it with his serum. He returns to London, a hero. Moonlight scenes on the ship and in the tropical beauty of the islands form beautiful settings for the romantic scenes. Other characters in the drama are vividly portrayed by Marjorie Rambeau, Zita Johann, Roger Imhof, and H. B. Warner, Irving Cummings directed.

"Lilly Turner"

Following her brilliant success in "Frisco Jenny," which was hailed by their enthusiastic attendance proved that was the type of role they'd like to see Ruth Chatterton in, the First National studio again cast her as a down-to-earth role. This time she appears in the title role of "Lilly Turner," which opens to-morrow at The Alhambra. Advance reports from Hollywood say that Miss Chatterton has even eclipsed her extraordinary fine work in "Frisco Jenny." "Lilly Turner," which has been adapted to the screen from the New York stage success of the same title, is a beautiful girl, whose beauty and figure are used as a "come-on" for yokels, by the owner of a travelling health exhibit, which she joins after a hard checked career. Playing the title role, Chatterton, who amazed Hollywood by actually doing a "crotch" dance in the picture, is said to give a sublime characterization with her dramatic power, rising to great heights. George Brent, for the first time since his marriage to Ruth Chatterton, appears with her in the same picture, in the health exhibit's strong man. They had both appeared together in "The Crash," but that picture had been made before their marriage. Guy Kibbee, last seen in "42nd Street," is cast as Dr. McGill, the owner of the travelling health exhibit, while Frankie McHugh plays the role of Lilly Turner's drunken husband. All told there are eleven splendid players who appear opposite Chatterton. These include Ruth Donnelly, Gordon Westcott, Grant Mitchell, and "Ike Busch."

"The House of Rothschild"

George Arliss, who has given the screen many unusual things in the way of characterization, enjoys a new experience in his latest picture, "The House of Rothschild," his first 20th Century starring vehicle which is the current feature attraction at the King's Theatre. For seldom do the dramas of the drama permit an actor to play father to himself as Arliss does in this Joseph M. Schenck Darryl F. Zanuck presentation. Taking for its plot the rise to world power of the Rothschild family during the Napoleonic era and stressing the loyalty and love between its members, this picture has been pronounced the biggest production in the respective careers of 20th Century pictures and George Arliss, who plays both old Mayer Rothschild, the father, and Nathan Rothschild, the one of the five sons who did the most to win the family world renown. Watching Arliss as Alfred Werker directed him, during the filming of this United Artists release, one of the secrets of his success could have been easily realized. He is one star who works for the joy of his labour and to justify the large salary he receives. Arliss' portrayal in this picture is a carefully prepared one. During his recent vacation in London he spent considerable time in a library there studying up on all the personal facts concerning the early Rothschilds he could find. He is an omnivorous reader, and likes research work. All the characteristics he could ferret out, like the habit peculiar to Nathan, whom he portrays, of forgetting to move his hat in the presence of royalty, and other of the man's little mannerisms, he brought back to Hollywood and had embodied in the script.

SHING MUN WOLFRAM
MINE RAID

quarters. All three were masked with towels over their faces. Two of the intruders each fired a shot. Wong Ping, the owner of the mine, was lying in bed in the office at the rear of the building at the time.

Au Kit was taken by the robbers to a cubicle, and here he was covered up with a grass mat. Whilst he was lying there, he heard Wong Ping shout, "Save Life!"

There was one foki in the main room asleep, three others in the cockpit, and Chan Mui, who was wounded, as well as another employee were in the cubicle where Au Kit was imprisoned.

The four other robbers kept guard at the office door, and intruders were on the premises for about a quarter of an hour. In all, they stole $120 in money.

All the robbers spoke Puntli with a Hakka accent, and had the appearance of shop coolies.

DAUGHTER

for more than 30 years, Admiral Richard made an eloquent address in the following terms:

"My Reverend Mother:—It was in Alsace then still occupied, in the twilight of that tragic year, that you were born. Your childhood was spent in circumstances pleading for relief, at a time when France was like an amputated limb, its kind and body torn by an exhausting struggle. This pleading for relief was everywhere, and you then decided to consecrate yourself to the service of God and to those who could be helped by such service."

"For more than 30 years since, at Saigon, at Manila, and at Hongkong, you have ministered to the needs of the suffering. Your modesty has not prevented your deeds of charity from being known and recognized, and six years ago, you were raised to the rank of Mother Provincial, and in your hands was placed the direction of the Institutions of St. Paul de Chartres in China and Indo-China. This at the same time as four of your sisters, in the Antilles and in the Far East, were themselves also extending by similar noble work, the fair name of France. Gentle Dei par Francien."

"I thank Lady Peel for having graced our ceremony with her presence and at the same time demonstrating by her presence, the appreciation and goodwill of the Government of Hongkong, to one who, for 17 years, had performed a mission of charity and mercy amongst the sick and destitute of the Colony. I also thank Mrs. Borrett, and all other friends, French and others, for assisting at this ceremony."

DECORATION CEREMONY.—Madame Melanie Suss, in religious Sister Marguerite of St. Paul, it is an honour for my predecessors to have discovered your merits and to have requested that they be fittingly sanctioned with the Cross of Honour. It is an honour for me to convey it to you. In the name of the President of the French Republic and with his thanks, I have the honour to create you a Chevalier of the Legion d'Honneur."

With his sword, the Commander-in-Chief then lightly touched Sister Marguerite on the shoulder. Placing the Cross in position, he embraced her and stood back and held up to the salute. Arms of the Guard of Honour also sprang up sharply to the salute, as the band rendered the Marseillaise in honour of the new Chevalier.

It was a moving spectacle, and some of the Sister by whom Mother Marguerite is held in great devotion, were visibly affected.

Afterwards, a march past was held of the Naval Guard of Honour, numbering nearly a hundred men, and from a position of honour at the gate the aged Marguerite alone took the salute as it swung out through the garden.

The health of Sister Marguerite was toasted at a reception which was held inside the convent buildings and which brought the ceremonial to a conclusion. Amongst those present were Lady Peel, with Capt. Walter A. D. C. representing H. E. the Governor; Mrs. Borrett, wife of the General Officer Commanding, with Capt. Abbott, A.D.C. representing His Excellency; Lt. Commander F. H. Porter, representing Commodore Frank Elliot; Mgr. H. Valtorta, Vicar Apostolic of Hongkong and Head of the Italian Mission; Mgr. Desvazieres, Head of the French Mission; M. Soulangue, French Consul in Hongkong; M. C. Renner, Vice-Consul; Hon. Dr. A. R. PRESIDENT LINCOLN
THEFTSCHINESE MESS BOYS CONVICTED

Wong Hop, 48 years, a mess boy of the steamer President Lincoln, was charged before Mr. J. H. B. Lee at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning with the theft of soap, a bath towel, a carpenter's square, matches, toilet paper, tinied fish and raisins, from the steamer yesterday. A boarding house runner named Chan Ying, was charged with receiving the articles.

Another mess boy, Wong Pak-yuen, 46 years, was charged with stealing a broom, 24 lbs. of soap and a piece of canvas, and Li Tat-chow, 36 years, a boarding house runner was charged with receiving the goods.

The second and fourth defendants were further charged with boarding the vessel without a permit.

Mr. C. Y. Kwan appeared for the second and fourth defendants and entered a plea of not guilty, while Detective-Sergeant Danbrowsky appeared for the prosecution.

Fauqr Khan, a watchman employed by the Dollar Steamship Line, stated that at 9.30 a.m. yesterday, he saw the three boxes containing the articles in No. 9 Hold on the steamer President Lincoln. The boxes were tied with rope, which he recognised as belonging to the Company, so he kept the boxes for investigation.

After all the passengers had taken their baggage from No. 9 Hold, he was approached by the second and fourth defendants, who asked him why he had removed the boxes. They said the boxes belonged to some passengers, but when asked to bring the passengers forward to claim the boxes, they said the passengers had gone.

The second defendant claimed two boxes which had the Mess Chow Hotel label on them, and the fourth defendant claimed the box with the Asia Hotel label. They were asked to open the boxes. The second defendant opened one box, and when witness saw the contents he sent for the Chief Officer. Acting under instructions from the Chief Officer, the remaining two boxes were opened and were found to contain articles which were recognised as being part of the ship's stores. The police were sent for and the defendants were taken into police custody.

Detective-Sergeant Danbrowsky stated that at 5.30 p.m. on the same day, the first and third defendants came to the Water Police Station and claimed the boxes and articles. They alleged that they were passengers from San Francisco. When the defendants were taken back to the ship, they admitted they were mess boys.

Mr. Clarke, steward of the President Lincoln, was called and recognised the goods as being part of the ship's stores. The stores were kept in the storeroom under the charge of a storekeeper, who distributed them daily.

Witness stated that the defendants were very hard working boys, and this was the first time that they had been in trouble.

On being questioned, the first defendant stated that he had collected the things over a period of several months. He intended to distribute them among his poorer relatives.

Mr. Kwan submitted that his clients, the second and fourth defendants, in view of the evidence given, had no case to answer. They were boarding house runners and were sent out by their respective hotels to canvass for customers. This was borne out by the labels on the boxes.

His Worship, in agreeing with Mr. Kwan's submission, discharged the second and fourth defendants on the charge of receiving. On the second charge of boarding the vessel without a permit, they were fined $1 each. The second defendant stated that a pass had been issued to him by the Dollar Steamship Line some time ago, but he had lost it. The fourth defendant admitted that he had no pass.

The first and third defendants were convicted on the charge of larceny and were sentenced to one month's hard labour each. In view of their character and this being their first offence, the alternative of a $50 fine was imposed, on the plea of the first defendant.

Institute and Sisters of the Italian Convent; Rev. Fr. Novati, Head of the Spanish Dominican Mission; Rev. Fr. Spada, Vicar of the Catholic Cathedral; Rev. Bro. Almar, Director of La Salle College and other Christian Brothers; Prof. Shellshar, Dr. F. A. Grace, Orazio, Dr. S. S. Strahan, Dr. J. C. McGown, Dr. H. D. Matthews, Dr. J. W. Anderson, Dr. T. V. Ware, M. and Mme. Montargis, Capt. Loup, Commander of the Primauguet; Lt. Bachy, A.D.C. to Admiral Richard; Paymaster Commander Guegn, Secretary to His Excellency; and Lt. Maloux, in charge of the Guard of Honour.

PRINCE LEAVES
MELBOURNEROUSING
SEND-OFFSUSSEX LEAVES FOR TASMANIACROWDS CHEER ON FOUR MILE ROUTE

(The Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Magazine. London, 1934. Received, November 13, 1934 a.m.)

Melbourne, Nov. 12.

Glowing valedictory tributes were paid to H.R.H. the Duke of Gloucester on his departure from this city today.

The farewell to the Prince brought to an official close the centenary celebrations for which His Royal Highness had come to Melbourne.

Tens of thousands of enthusiastic people lined the streets for four miles as the Duke of Gloucester, accompanied by dignitaries of the State, Sussex, lay. He dock where H.M.S. Sussex lay. He was cheered all along the route, and as he went aboard the cruiser the send-off reached the climax of its enthusiasm.

H.M.S. Sussex sailed for Tasmania almost immediately, and after a visit there will return to New South Wales where the Prince will make the closer acquaintance of that State.—Reuter Special.

RUSSIAN LAD
CHARGEDNOT WANTED IN COLONY

Remarking that he wished to interview the lad further, Mr. Schofield, in the Central Magistracy this morning, adjourned a case in which a Russian youth, Boris Pavloff, alias Soboloff, aged 17, was charged with entering the Colony without a valid passport.

Sergeant Russell, prosecuting, stated that defendant came from Canton. He gave himself up at the Central Charge Room as a destitute. He was in Hongkong last year when assistance was given him by a Russian resident, but he ran away. He had been helped with schooling in Shanghai and Tientsin but he also ran away from these places. "He deserves no sympathy really," said the officer.

Pavloff, replying to his Worship, said he had been working at Sunning in a hospital but he did not like the Chinese food. He came to Hongkong to look for "any kind of work."

Sergeant Russell added that he had been instructed to ask his Worship for an expulsion order against the defendant, as they did not want him in the Colony.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

IMPOSSIBILITIES RECALLED AS EX-EMERGENCY ADVANCES.—Sir Arthur Hops.

Falling from a scaffolding at Pilem Street, two Chinese workmen received injuries which necessitated their removal to hospital yesterday.

Charged before Mr. Schofield this morning with the possession of 975 heroin pills, Chan Pui, 30, was fined $250 or, in default, three months' hard labour.

Serious injuries were received by a girl, Lam Oi, aged eight years, when she fell into the Chinese Y.M.C.A. compound from Bridges Street. She was sent to the Government Civil Hospital for treatment.

Seen climbing up a drain pipe to the first floor of a house in Mosquito Square, Cheung Ming was arrested and brought before Mr. Macfadyen in the Central Police Court this morning. Sentence of one month's hard labour was passed on a charge of loitering.

Charged before Mr. Macfadyen in the Central Police Court this morning with the theft of brass water meter covers from outside houses in Upper Lascar Row, Square Street and Bridges Street, the property of the W. D. Wong Sang, 29, unemployed, was sentenced to two months' hard labour. Detective-Sergeant C. Goodwin stated that the covers had been forced off, and it would cost the P. W. D. about $30 to put them back.

formed as to what passed between the British and American groups.

There was no truth in the story of secret Anglo-Japanese economic and political activity, said the statement, and the British Government's representatives had not been asked secretly, or otherwise, to consider any offer of concessions with regard to Manchukuo and Japanese oil markets.

LONG FORGOTTEN.

As to the textile trade competition compromise story, Mr. MacDonald declared that textile negotiations with Japan had been in abeyance for months, so far as the British Government was concerned.

The British Prime Minister's statement is regarded in American naval delegation circles as most helpful and as having cleared the air.—Reuter.

TEXT OF STATEMENT.

London, Nov. 12. The Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, whose attention has been called to current press statements published in the United States with regard to the London naval conversations, has authorized the following statement:

"I would like to have it thoroughly understood that the American representatives have been kept informed of what passes between the Japanese representatives and ourselves during these conversations, just as the Japanese have been similarly informed of what has passed between the Americans and ourselves. There is no truth in the story that there is intense secret activity between the British and Japanese on the economic and political fronts."

"As regards the Manchukuo and Japanese oil situations, which have been fully discussed in the press, we have been asked, neither secretly nor otherwise, to consider any offer of concessions. So far as the Governments are concerned, negotiations regarding the textile situation have been in abeyance for some months. For the industrial and commercial deputation recently in Japan the Federation of British Industries is solely responsible, and its members have themselves stated that it has no other status."

BRITISH MINISTER
COMINGCANTON OFFICIALS TO WELCOME

Sir Alexander Cautogian, British Minister to China, is coming down to the South to pay an official visit to the Canton authorities on the 22nd instant. He will call at Swatow first.

General Chan Chai-tong, Mr. Lin Yun-koy and Dr. C. H. Chang, adviser to the Pacification Commissioner of Eastern Kwangtung, will welcome the Minister in Swatow. Dr. Chang came to Hongkong by the noon train today and left for Swatow immediately.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

Injured by a circular saw at the Kowloon Godowns yesterday, a labourer was sent to the Kwong Wah Hospital.

The latest Fleet Auxiliary List contains another new boom defence vessel, the Watergate, which, like the Aldgate, has been built at, and for the defence of Hongkong.

In the list of wreaths laid at the Cenotaph on Sunday, mention should have been made of the handsome one laid by Mr. T. G. Bennett, of the R.F.A. Apple Leaf, on behalf of the Royal Fleet Auxiliary.

The Queen's Theatre has been booked for performances of the "Hurnat" Show, featuring Professor G. M. Andrews, otherwise known as "Hurnat," the Indian Dracula of the stage, in "The Garden of Mystery." The public will thus have an opportunity to see mysterious acts under Indian yogi powers which have not hitherto been revealed on the stage in Hongkong. The date of the performances will be announced later.

For stealing a counterpane from the steamer President Lincoln at the Kowloon Wharf and Godowns on Monday, Yeung Chiu, 40 years, a coolie, was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning. Defendant was seen by a Chinese watchman to throw the counterpane from the ship to the wharf, and then go down and pick it up. Detective-Sergeant Danbrowsky appeared for the prosecution. Defendant had one previous conviction.

SOUTH CHINA'S OPPORTUNISM

YESTERDAY'S NEEDLE MATCH FULL OF THRILLS

Opportunism was the secret of South China's victory over China Athletic in their First Division needle match on the Football Club ground yesterday. They won by the odd goal in five.

The game was full of thrills, but unfortunately there were frayed tempers as well. The opening exchanges found an Athletic player off the field through injury after a collision with Tong Kwan, of South China, who received a caution from the referee. Fung King-yu returned to the field after about five minutes' absence. The Athletic forwards were inclined to retain the ball too long and were robbed of possession before they had time to shoot and their wing halves allowed South China's flank to march up. Horla lay their weakness.

By virtue of their win South China "B" move up to level pointing with their "A" eleven, but have played an extra game.

SOUTH CHINA SCORE.

The Athletic took up the offensive soon after the start and threatened when awarded a free kick close in. Au Fai, however, shot wide. A period of even exchanges then followed, but erratic shooting kept no score registered, until Yeung was sent away and from his centre Tsang King-kui found the net to give South China the lead.

The Athletic almost evened matters up from the centre kick when they broke through with a determined rush, but Chui's attempt went wide. Fortune again fluctuated and Chuck Shek-kun lobbed over the heads of several players from well back over the half-way line to score South China's second goal before Sul had a chance of recovering from a previous shot. Before the interval, however, the Athletic rallied and Ho Kar-keung sent Chan in to beat Wong Ka-kai with a cross-shot.

FURTHER TRIALS.

The teams changed over with South China holding a goal advantage, but the Athletic opened with a raid on their opponents' citadel which resulted in Chan levelling the score. They continued to hold the advantage territorially for some time after this and for their untidiness when within striking distance would probably have taken the lead. Chan and Choi both narrowly missed.

When play transferred to the other end South China made the most of the opportunity their raid gave them. Lee Shek-yau sent across a fine centre from the touch and Sul stopped the ball but failed to hold it. Tsang running up pushed the ball over the line to put South China ahead once more. This lead they held until the final whistle despite the game efforts of the Athletic to bring the final result to a draw. The teams were: Chinese Athletic—Sui Tin-lim; Mak Sui-hon; Wong Sik-ling; Lai Kwok-chui; Chu Au-fai; Ho Chai-yin; Tang Kwong-sun; Chan Chui-wo; Ho Kar-keung; Au Ping-ming; and Fung King-yu.

Local Cycling Records

TIME TRIALS TO BE HELD SOON

Last week-end's run of the Hongkong Cycling Club saw a few new faces, mostly as a result of the successful tourist event promoted by the Club over the previous week-end.

Owing to severe knee trouble which developed during the week, the run leader, H. A. G. Keaton, was unable to attend. The Sunday run, which, in consequence, was led by the Vice-captain, E. Munna, who conducted a pleasant spin around the island, with halts at Tytam, Stanley, Repulse and Deep Water Bay. The light rain falling throughout failed to dampen the enthusiasm of those taking part. A further party under the Captain carried out a short spin with the social section of the Club on the Mainland.

Next week-end's spin will be conducted by E. G. Tweedy, who will leave the Jordan Road Pier of the Vehicular Ferry at 9.30 a.m. for a surprise destination. Under the Hon. Secretary, L. A. Anning, the social section will leave the same rendezvous at 1.15 p.m. for Castle Peak Cafe-teria where the hard-riding party will be met for tea. All local enthusiasts are invited to take part in either run. Until further notice the Wednesday runs will be discontinued.

The Hon. Secretary (Mr. Anning, 23 Tai-po Road) will be pleased to receive any entries for time trials to be held with the object of establishing local records. Record certificates will be awarded to the fastest finishers. To cover feeding and other small expenditures a nominal fee of $1 will be charged.

FURTHER TRIALS.

The first run is to be held on November 25, commencing at 10 a.m. and will be over a distance of 50 miles. On December 2 a start is to be made at 9 a.m. and the distance will be 100 miles.

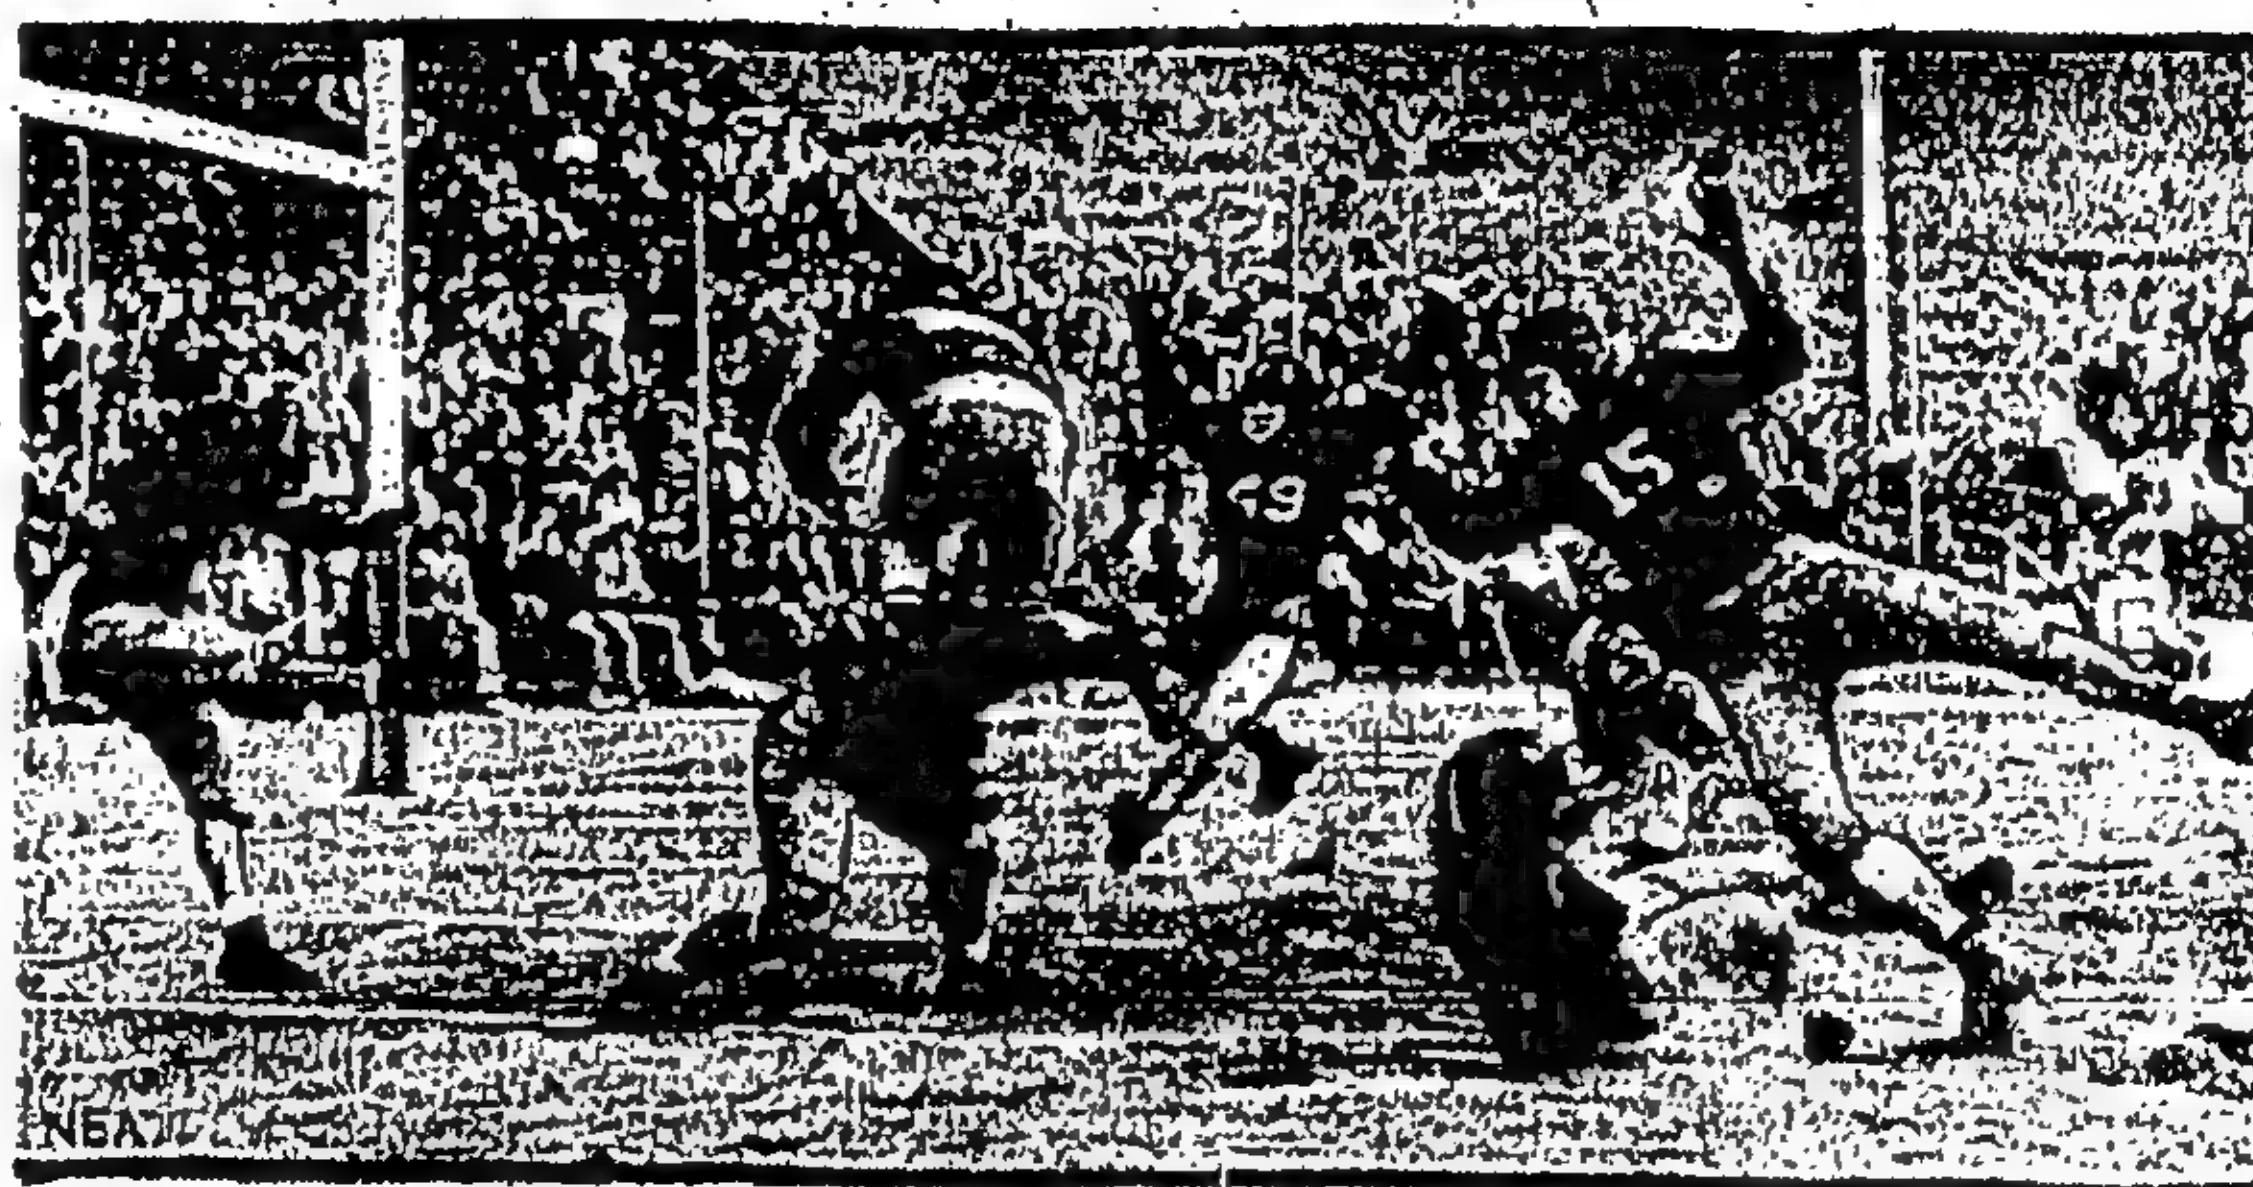

Full details as to course, etc. may be had on application. It is decided to announce that all competitors in the Tourist Time Trial actually completed the course of 50 miles. The final party were delayed for 3 hours at Tai-po owing to an accident near the 12th milestone, but eventually repaired having been successfully made, this section reached Shamshuipo at 3.30 p.m. Miss Nancy Chaine, now a Club member, is therefore in all probability the first local lady cyclist to cover the circuit.

An attendance list and details of mileage covered by individual riders on club runs (omitting mid-week spins) has been compiled, and makes interesting reading. The following are the leading figures up to the end of October during which time 33 official runs have been held:

Rider	Attendance	Mileage
H. A. G. Keaton	27	1,401
C. L. Reid	23	1,101
E. Munna	19	1,249
E. G. Tweedy	11	751
L. A. Anning	11	471
J. W. H. Cole	10	471

Kam; Yeung Shui-yick; Lai Shui-ying; Tsang King-kui; Chuck Shek-kun and Lee Shek-yau.

Football Charity Games

£17,412 REALISED DURING AUGUST

Football never fails to be the occasion in the cause of charity. Charges of commercialism have been levelled at the game, but never is any mention made of the good work done for charity. When an appeal for funds was made for the relief of the dependents of the Gresford Colliery disaster, football did not turn a deaf ear. Every team was ordered by the F.A. to make a collection at one of their home matches.

The results of these efforts are not yet known, but a very useful sum is certain to be forthcoming. Then, at their recent meeting, the F.A. Council subscribed £250 to the Mansion House Fund for the Gresford sufferers.

Hospitals always requiring financial assistance, can always look forward to the football season with the assurance that some money, however small, will be coming in.

ARSENAL TOP LIST.

The proceeds of the practice matches each year are devoted entirely to charity. This year it is announced that matches in August realized a total sum of £17,412 2s. 1d., all of which was distributed to charitable institutions. Glamorous Arsenal F.C., who attracted a crowd of about 50,000 to see them have their try-out, were easily at the top of the list with £12,118. Although London clubs handed over a sum of £4,676 Tottenham Hotspur came second to Arsenal with £554.

In addition to this charity competitions are run in every country and useful contributions are made to deserving causes. Some of the big soccer clubs have endowed beds in their local hospitals and pay for their try-out. One well-known Third Division club in the East End of London, for instance, has at least six beds in various hospitals.

Say what they may, football's critics cannot point to any game that makes a stronger appeal to the masses of an outdoor sport in the deserving cause of charity.

CALIFORNIA STATE BANTAM CROWN

Tommy and Dado Clash on November 20

Los Angeles, Oct. 31. Young Tommy and Speedy Dado, two of the ablest Filipino fighters in the world, have been matched together in a contest for which fight fans have been waiting for. They will clash November 20 for the California state bantam-weight crown. It will be their fourth meeting. They first clashed in Oakland, Oct. 12, 1932, where Dado won to take the title which will again be at stake. Their next meeting was in May, 1933, when Tommy won from Dado to gain the title back again. Again, in October, last year, they met, and Tommy lost.

Tommy will be out to even the old score. He has encountered some hard luck this year, having won by a knockout from Benny Gallup, defeated Huerta Evans, lost to Lou Salica, and drawn twice with Joe Ticken.

Dado's record on the Pacific Coast has not been overly impressive, either. He won from Pete Sevedra, Bobby Olyvas, Lou Salica and Ticken, but previously to the last fight lost by a knockout to Ticken.—United Press.

CADDIES STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Benoni (Transvaal). A golfer who was about to alight from his car at the Van Ryn course, Benoni had a curious experience when a flash of lightning struck two caddies and felled a number of players. He had his hand on the handle of the door and was about to step out when he was almost blinded by the flash and received a severe shock which paralysed his arm and made it impossible for him to release his grip for several seconds.

He suffered no consequent ill effects. Golfers were taken unawares when the storm broke and a party of five with their two native caddies had an unnerving experience.

They had taken shelter under a tree when there was a vivid flash of lightning accompanied by a terrific report. The party was hurled in all directions and the two natives were severely burnt by the discharge. The Europeans escaped unhurt but the caddies had to be removed to Boksburg Hospital.

A number of telephone lines in Benoni, Brakpan and Springs were put out of order while half the main lines between Brakpan and Johannesburg were similarly affected.

In Benoni the greater part of the town was plunged into darkness lasting a few seconds as a result of a fault caused by the lightning. Springs had a similar experience and was in darkness for about five minutes.—Reuter.

Blow For Irish Athletics

C.N. AND C.A. CONGRESS MEETING.

London. Ireland will no longer be able to compete in big international contests and Irish athletes will have to content themselves with performing at their own meetings, as the result of a special Congress of the National Athletic and Cycling Association held in Dublin.

The meeting was called to consider the decision of the International Athletic Federation at Stockholm that the N. A. and C. A. should confine its activities to the Irish Free State and that the Northern Ireland Association should be regarded as coming within the jurisdiction of the English Association. When the Federation's ruling was put to the vote it was defeated by 31 votes to 23.—Reuter.

WOMEN'S TEAM TO TOUR EGYPT

The following women's hockey team will leave England on November 10 for a fortnight tour of Egypt—a week to be spent at Cairo and a week at Alexandria. J. Ellis (Surrey and England), G. Goodman (Warwick), M. G. Grimwade (Suff. East), D. Morrison-Inchus (Edinburgh), P. Jackson (Derbyshire), E. McKerron (Dumfries), B. Moffatt (Glasgow), W. Neave (England), N. Oliver (Melrose), P. Snook (Herts), E. Stone (Kent), M. Tobbs, E. J. Warwick (Hunts), and Misses Arnold (umpire). Miss E. J. Warwick, of Peterborough, has arranged the tour.

SOUTH AFRICANS NOVEL TOUR

Johannesburg. R. J. Crisp, one of the outstanding fast bowlers in the country and Theo de Klerk, one of South Africa's best all round cricketers, are to keep in practice in the African jungle. They have joined an expedition to Central Africa but as they are both keen to secure places in the South African team to tour England in 1935 they will be returning to Cape Town in the middle of the present cricket season and take part in the more important Currie Cup matches.

Before leaving Johannesburg they added to their baggage a number of cricket balls and a bat which was given to them by Syd Curnow, the South African international. So perhaps in a few weeks' time the jungle glades will be echoing to the click of leather and willow, while monkeys chatter appreciatively over a classic off-drive by de Klerk or complain at the way Crisp is tearing up the pitch.

Crisp, it will be recalled, established a world's record during the last Currie Cup season when for the second time in first-class cricket he took four wickets with four balls.—Reuter.

DUNCAN'S APPOINTMENT

Professional At Mere Country Club

London. George Duncan, the Open Golf Champion of 1920, and British Rider Cup International, has been appointed professional at the Mere Golf and Country Club, near Altringham, Cheshire. Duncan and James Brand laid out the course, which will be ready for play on January 1, 1935.

The new course is in beautiful surroundings, forming the centre of an estate of 251 acres, bordering the main Manchester-Chester road.

The eighteen holes comprise 6,500 yards and the scratch score has been set at 75. Duncan has many splendid performances to his credit, including the captaining of the British Ryder Cup team that regained the trophy from the Americans at Moortown, Leeds, in 1929. In that match Duncan gave one of his best exhibitions of his classic style in beating Walter Hagen by the astonishing margin of ten up and eight to play.

After holding various posts, Duncan went to Wentworth, Surrey, where he remained for a number of years until he accepted the remunerative position of private golf coach to the Aga Khan.—Reuter.

The uniform to be worn by the team will give the first hint of a change in the conventional hockey attire for women, for the usual long stockings approved by the Women's Hockey Association are being discarded in favour of stockings turned down below the knee. This will be the first time an English team travelling abroad has departed from the standard dress.

It may be followed by other changes; women hockey players are anxious to wear something lighter and less bulky than the "hockey tunic" now in vogue.

BADMINTON CONTROL

RECENT FORMATION OF INTERNATIONAL BODY

NINE CENTURIES REPRESENTED AT INAUGURAL MEETING

As a result of a meeting in July last an International Badminton Federation has been formed to take full control of the game in future—just 40 years after the formation of the English Badminton Association.

At the invitation of the Badminton Association representatives of all nations met at Bush House, London, on July 6 for the purpose of inaugurating this international Federation. In addition to the representatives of the Badminton Association, the national organisations of the following countries were represented, viz.:—Canada, Denmark, England, France, Holland, Ireland, New Zealand, Scotland and Wales. Promises of future support and membership were received from Australia, Federated Malay States, India and South Africa.

Mr. A. D. Prebble, chairman of the Badminton Association, took the chair and welcomed the various delegates in a short speech in which he gave a brief history of the Badminton Association since its formation in 1893. The chairman then proposed the following Resolution—

"That this Meeting, consisting of duly authorised representatives of National Badminton Organisations, shall and hereby does form an International Badminton Federation; and that the Draft Rules already circulated to each National Organisation by the Badminton Association be and hereby are adopted as the Constitution of the Federation."

This was seconded by Sir George Thomas and carried nem-con.

The meeting now resolved itself into the first annual Council in General Meeting, in accordance with Rule No. 5. The chairman at once announced that he had the authority of the Badminton Association to state that they fully recognised the Federation and hereby handed over to the Federation the international functions (including control of the laws of the Game) at present performed by the Badminton Association, and further that the Badminton Association proposed to make a donation of £200 to the funds of the new Federation.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The meeting then proceeded to the election of the officers for the ensuing year, viz.:— President: Sir George Thomas, Bart.

Vice-presidents: Messrs. B. L. Biscoed, E. Hawthorn, Col. H. Bruce Hay, D.S.O., A. D. Prebble, Hon. treasurer: D. L. H. Mercer.

The executive committee were elected as follows:—J. Plunkett Dillon (Ireland), A. E. Hollings (Canada), Jackson Millar (Scotland), A. C. J. van Vossen (Denmark), L. T. Wickham (England), E. Trevor Williams (Wales).

Mr. F. W. Hickson, of 74, Grange Drive, Winchmore Hill, London, N.21, was appointed secretary. This address to be the official address of the Federation.

Although the inaugural meeting had accepted as the Constitution of the Federation the rules drawn up during the past few months and after consultation with other countries by a subcommittee of the Badminton Association, there yet remained several matters (such as finance, tournament and international matches) for which it is necessary to draw up regulations to be observed wherever Badminton is played. For this purpose several sub-committees were appointed, and their reports will in due course be presented to the executive committee.

After the conclusion of the business the delegates of the meeting were entertained by the committee of the Badminton Association at the Mayfair Hotel, Berkeley Street, to a luncheon at which Col. Arthur Hill, president of the Badminton Association, took the chair.

FRIENDLY CRICKET

K.C.C. DEFEATED BY CLUB

The Kowloon C. C. first eleven were defeated by the Hongkong C. C. first eleven by an innings and 89 runs, when they continued their friendly two-day match on the latter's ground yesterday.

For the Kowloon C. C. the highest scores in the first innings were A. W. Ramsey (20) and C. I. Stapleton (10).

In their second innings the K.C.C.'s highest scores were compiled by W. C. Hung (38) and E. C. Fincher (27).

The Hongkong C. C. bowlers were decidedly in form. T. A. Pearce captured four wickets, T. M. Redmond took three, while G. R. M. Ricketts had two, in the K.C.C.'s first knock. In Kowloon's second innings, T. A. Pearce and G. R. M. Ricketts captured four wickets each.

The total compiled by the Kowloon C. C. in their two innings was 193, while the total compiled by the Hongkong C. C. on Saturday was 282 for five wickets declared.

H.K.C.C. JUNIORS WIN.

The two-day friendly fixture played between the Kowloon Cricket Club and the Hongkong Cricket Club juniors on the former's ground was concluded yesterday afternoon, resulting in a win by three wickets for the Hongkong side.

Kowloon took first loss of the wicket on Saturday afternoon, and compiled the useful total of 254 for eight wickets declared. The batting was consistent, N. A. E. Mackay scoring 50, W. Mulcahy 53 and A. E. Perry 40. W. Keith-Robinson captured four wickets for 71 runs and A. E. Potter three for 21.

The match was resumed yesterday afternoon, and the visitors passed the home team's total for the loss of seven wickets. R. H. Griffiths scored 63, while P. H. Scoones had bad luck to miss his century by a single run, being well caught by F. A. Broadbridge, fielding at square leg. J. E. Fupp (21) and J. E. Potter (32 retired) also helped towards their total of 285.

Of the Kowloon bowlers, V. Durling took three wickets for 70 runs, and Mackay three for 30.

BRITAIN, JAPAN AND AMERICA

There is talk in London and elsewhere of the possible revival, in a new form, of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance. To what extent the reports are based on probabilities it is difficult to say. But there does seem some ground for the assertion that economic as well as political issues have figured in the conversations on the naval problem, despite to-day's denial that there has been anything secretive in the exchanges of view. The suggestion is that Japan may be content with something less than naval parity if some arrangement could be devised leading to the cessation of the textile war between herself and Britain. It is from this somewhat flimsy basis that rumours have gained currency of the possibility of a new alliance being devised. It is of interest to recall that the old Anglo-Japanese Alliance began in 1905, and that in addition to involving an understanding for the mutual defence of the territorial rights of the two nations in the Far East and India, it aimed at the preservation of peace in Eastern Asia, by ensuring the independence and integrity of China, with the policy of the Open Door for all nations. The Alliance was renewed in 1911 for a period of ten years, with certain modifications, but was then allowed to lapse. It is known that American susceptibilities were a factor in the non-renewal of the Alliance, besides which its continuance was not looked upon favourably in League of Nations circles. Since 1921, a great deal has happened in the Far East, throwing suspicion on some of Japan's policies, and certainly leading to an estrangement between Britain and Japan. The textile dispute has also latterly served to aggravate the position. Yet, on looking back, it must be conceded that the old Alliance was a stabilising factor in the Far East, and its value in this respect can hardly be overstated. Hopes in some quarters that the closer drawing together of Britain and the United States, following the lapsing of the Alliance, would compensate for the change of alignment, and still preserve peace in the Orient, have been undermined to some extent by recent events in this part of the world. But it is very much open to question whether there can be any revival of the former understanding between Britain and Japan along the lines of the old alliance. Such a step would obviously evoke unwelcome American reactions, to say nothing of the present trend of world politics against definite military and naval groupings. None the less, any feasible plan which would lead to the strengthening of Anglo-Japanese

NOTES OF THE DAY BRITISH EFFICIENCY

Mr. Herbert N. Casson was writing for the information of the Canadian people when he said: "There has been a belief in Canada that the United States is the land of progress, and that Great Britain is the land of tradition." He goes on to say that if a man wants to know what is now, certainly he should go to New York, but if he wants to know what is tested, proved and sound, he should go to London. Mr. Casson is an authority on business management, economics, efficiency and such. His word must be respected. Since he was born in Canada and spent 24 years there, he knows the Dominion. Since he spent the next twenty-odd years in the United States, he should know America. And, finally, having spent the last twenty years in England, he must be in a position to compare the merits of the British and American business systems, and advise all British people of the fruits of his experience. Canadians are not the only ones who, in the past, may have felt some doubt as to the efficiency of the British business system. Too conservative! Old fashioned! No efficiency! These epithets were too frequently thrown into the faces of the reserved and wholly competent British man of business. Mr. Casson has something to say about such charges.

ERA OF EXPERIMENT

It is quite true, he points out, that before the War Great Britain had been losing, since 1885, the position of foremost industrial nation of the world. During the War and for six years afterwards, the bureaucracy and politicians were in control. British business lay prostrate. Britain had her six years of "New Deal," she was in control, and the experiment was a failure. Then, in 1920 came the revival of private enterprise. The "reconstruction department" was quietly abolished and there commenced a twelve year period of slow and unsteady recovery. It was not until last year that the strong upward trend began. But in 1933 463 new factories were built and 95 old ones extended, about half of the total in or near London. Ten per cent. of these were branch factories, built by foreign companies, because of the new British policy of protection. More new factories were built in Britain in 1933 than in any other country. In 1934 there was only one automobile factory in the world which paid 100 per cent. dividends. It was Sir Herbert Austin's, employing 16,000 persons, not the largest in the world, but certainly the most efficient. Since 1925, in three good years and five bad ones, it has increased its output and exports 600 per cent. and its wages 145 per cent. It has lowered its prices 65 per cent. and has paid the highest dividends in Great Britain. Not bad for these conservatives! Furthermore, it has received no state help of any kind, nor any monopoly or other advantages.

GROWING CITIES

While the slogan everywhere else is, "Back to the land," Britain's cities are expanding at incredible speed. Wembley had a population of 29,000 in 1924, and now has 60,000; Hayes had 11,000 in 1928 and now has 35,000; Luton had 50,000 in 1924 and now has 80,000; Coventry had 70,000 in 1901 and now has 190,000. And London still grows. Not only is London the fastest growing city in the world, but it is the fastest growing, covering eight square miles and swallowing up farms and villages. There seems to be no limit to its growth. Where there are such results as these produced by private enterprise, there must be efficiency. There have been no new discoveries of natural resources, few government subsidies. In fact the Government has hindered as much as it has helped, except in its policy of home trades protection. The prosperity that is now being created and distributed in Britain is not based on debt. British people are not going to pass on the bill for their progress to posterity. There is no artificial inflation of values. British financiers and businessmen have an efficient system of their own; unscientific, not based on statistics and organized charts, mechanics or logic, so much as it is based on common sense and a tradition of square dealing. Britain can teach the Empire, and the world, a lesson.

thening of Anglo-Japanese friendship would be widely welcomed in both countries. Better still would be an understanding, along the lines of a triple non-aggression pact, between Britain, Japan and the United States. If the present conversations have this eventual result, the bogey of a big upheaval in the Far East would disappear once and for all.

GROWING OLD AND STAYING HAPPY

By SILAS K. HOCKING

THE spectre of old age is generally worse than the reality. The fear of it gradually vanishes the nearer we approach it.

Poets, novelists, dramatists have done their best to make old age appear unlovely and even hideous. The old man is represented as being bleary-eyed and toothless, with knees and shoulders bent, legs unsteady, hands gnarled, and a voice like the croak of a raven.

In reality—speaking generally—that is not true.

I am 84—was walking along Parliament-street not long ago with a man who revealed to me that he was ninety-five. His back was not bent, nor were his steps unsteady. He walked firmly and briskly, with head erect and chin thrust out.

He appeared to be interested in most things; the movements of the time, in the political situation, in the state of Europe, and in the fate of civilisation.

Old age has its tragedies no doubt—but so has every other period of life. No one can wholly escape the ills to which flesh is heir, but to imagine that old age is the quintessence of all that is a ghastly and frightening human experience is to make a profound mistake.

Hence I like to think of the charm of old age—of its restfulness and peace after the storms have spent their fury. Of the quiet backwater sheltered from the wind, where, rich in garnered knowledge, and undisturbed by the fretful, noisy crowd, one can meditate in quietness, and live over again the sweetest moments that life has given.

Just as the closing hours of a summer's day are often the most beautiful and most restful, so the closing years of a long and busy life may yield the deepest content and provide the most satisfying charm. All the beauty of the world is not in the springtime; nor in the hot and sultry days of summer. Autumn is often richest in colour, and winter has a beauty unknown to all the other seasons.

Life is like the seasons, and each season has its own particular charm. Hence to look forward with fear and distress to the coming winter—to imagine that old age can yield us nothing but pain and anguish, is to reveal a timid and unheroic spirit and to make even the brightest days dark with forebodings that probably will never come true.

Rest is sweet only to the tired. If we were never tired we should never know the delight of relaxing our limbs and laying our heads on a pillow of down. After a hard day's work, or a long tramp over hill and dale, who has not said as he has thrown himself into his easy chair, "This is good. This is delightful. This is blessedness deep and satisfying."

Old age is essentially a time of rest and relaxation. The scarred and weather-beaten veteran takes off his helmet, removes his heavy armour, gets rid of his mud-clogged boots, and wrapping his dressing-gown round him, and pushing his tired feet into his carpet slippers, drops into his easy chair with a sigh of content.

Outside the bitter wind may rave, and the pitiless rain beat against his window panes, but he does not mind. He only feels sorry for those who are still exposed to the storm.

There may be a few old people who would like to fight life's battles over again—endure the pain of disappointed hopes and thwarted ambition, see their dreams fade like summer clouds, or more rarely feel the momentary ecstasy and thrill of a battle fought and victory won.

But, speaking generally, the quiet and calm of eventide are much more to their liking. They enjoy the rest after toil, the peace after strife, and are content to see the new generation putting on the armour that they have laid aside, and are grateful that they have done their job and earned their rest.

Not in all cases, I admit. A happy old age depends on what has gone before it. We reap in large measure what we have sown, or what was sown by our forebears. There are factors which go to the shaping of our lives for which we are not responsible. Inherited temperaments, weaknesses, dispositions which mar the beauty not only of old age but also of every period of life.

Yet how much we can do for ourselves if we only try!

Having a hobby is vastly important, and a hobby of some kind is surely within the reach of all. The man who retires from business and who has never had a hobby of any sort is in rather a pitiable condition. Nothing can be more boring, or even soul-destroying, than to sit twiddling one's thumbs with nothing to do. No wonder that such people become peevish and irritable and pessimistic, and are a nuisance to themselves and everybody else.

Perhaps the greatest thing of all in producing a delightful old age is to cultivate the friendship of the young. We keep young by entering into the spirit of youth. We can find infinite pleasure in sharing their pleasures and in looking at life from their point of view.

I sometimes meet old men who tell me that they cannot get on with the younger generation at all—don't understand them, don't know what they are up to. Don't know whether they are drifting. Don't know what will be the end of them.

There are silly, frivolous, addled, spineless young men and women in every generation, but the quality of the mass is, I think, finer than ever it was. They are not really at enmity with the old. They want our help, our sympathy, our encouragement. They have a rough road to travel, a hard battle to fight.

If we show ourselves friendly they will be glad of our friendship. And their friendship will enrich us, and be an inspiration. The old and the young should fraternise. They were meant to do so. The one is the complement of the other. The young and the middle-aged will not be afraid of old age when they see the octogenarians as blithe and cheerful as they are themselves—and perhaps a little more so.

The Very Idea!

By George

"BUT who," asked Alice as she twined her fingers in her neighbour's tress, "is that big handsome man who is sitting in the middle of the other people?"

"That is the Poet Lindell," quoth the Mad Hatter. "He is the No. 1 to-night and will have some nice things to say to you."

With these words the Mad Hatter put his hand behind Alice and skillfully removed a tart from the table into his mouth.

"Oh!" said Alice and burst into tears.

The Mad Hatter stood still with his mouth wide open and the tart stuck halfway in. He looked so funny that Alice dried her eyes on Abigail's handkerchief and stopped crying.

"It's perfectly absurd," said the Mad Hatter. However he finished his tart and took Alice by the hand to a place near the platform where they could hear the speakers.

The Poet Lindell began to speak. Alice was fidgeting with her hair but suddenly she noticed that the Mad Hatter was thumping his feet on the floor. He always did this when he was annoyed.

"What is it?" asked Alice in a whisper that could be heard all over the room.

"He is talking about the Wonderland of Kowloon," said the Mad Hatter indignantly. Alice remembered that the Mad Hatter lived on the Peak and began to giggle.

"It's prep post rous," stammered the Mad Hatter and he went back to find another tart.

Then the Poet Lindell in a big husky voice began to recite:

"Will you please roll up in hundreds, said the Vicar to Kowloon. There'll be others close behind you so you can't get here too soon."

You can really have no notion how delightful it can be To visit all the stalls and shows and then sit down to tea.

To St. Andrew's then, you parents with your children all repair.

Note don't revoke, beloved folk, but come and join the Fair.

Will won't you, will you, won't you, etc., etc.

Of course you will and have."

"Oh how lovely," said Alice and began to clap her hands.

The Mad Hatter pulled her roughly out of the room. "Punk," he said in an angry voice. "Get into a ricksha and we'll go home."

Radio Query

The Editor,
Hongkong Telegraph

Sir,—Last night at 11.15 p.m. I tuned in a station and heard an orchestral item "Hitting the Ceiling". This was followed by some other items and at 11.30 the announcer stated that the next piece was entitled "With all my heart". At 11.35 p.m. I heard "You needn't have to tell me, I knew it all the time" and at 11.50 "Why do I dream these dreams". I was unable to catch the name of the station and there must have been something wrong with my radio as my dial indicator was pointing at right angles to the floor. (My radio is a Federal combination).

On two occasions the announcer said a few words but I was unable to hear clearly what was said, though once I caught him saying something about 445. If I am correct in assuming that he was broadcasting from a wave length of 445 meters, could any of your readers who are radio fans kindly enlighten me what this station is, as the music was very pleasant and as the orchestral items were played to a very late hour? It is certainly a very good station to tune in after ZBW closes down at 10 or 10.30 p.m.

FUTILITY OF OPPOSITION

INDUSTRY TO GIVE UP STRUGGLE

Washington, Nov. 12.
It is believed here that because of the overwhelmingly popular endorsement of Administration policies as a result of the elections, industrial leaders are realising the futility of effective political opposition to the Administration and will co-operate with the Roosevelt Regime.

The Administration's programme includes a revision of the tax system, comprehensive railway legislation, passage of perfecting amendments to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, comprehensive revision of the National Industrial Recovery Administration along permanent lines and social legislation.

A trade agreement between Great Britain and the United States, which is now being very informally discussed by American diplomats in London, might incorporate the stabilisation of the pound-dollar cross rate. Further inflationary monetary legislation is unlikely.—Swan, Culbertson and Fritz.

MOTOR TOOTING NUISANCE

TWO OFFENDERS FINED

Unnecessary horn-blowing resulted in Ng Shiu-hee, of No. 39 Robinson Road, driver of private car No. 2846, being summoned before Mr. Schofield in the Central Magistracy this morning.

Traffic-Sergeant Clark said defendant blew his horn for 16 yards after he had turned the corner into Garden Road. There was a man in the way but the blowing was too much.

A fine of $5 was imposed. Defendant pleaded that he thought the blowing of the horn was necessary.

On a similar summons, Yau Ching, driver of motor lorry No. 193 was fined $3. He blew his horn in Murray Road, outside the Commodore's Office, when there were no pedestrians in the thoroughfare.

E. H. Hurst, of the Chinese Maritime Customs, was fined $5 for causing an obstruction with his car, No. 2836, in Connaught Road Central.

London, Nov. 12.
Asked in the House of Commons whether British ex-officers were being recruited as police officers for the Saar, the Prime Minister said the position was that, acting under the resolution adopted by the League Council of June 4 last, the Secretary General of the League recommended members of the League on September 3 to facilitate the task of the Saar Governing Commission in recruiting additional personnel outside the Saar for its police force during the plebiscite period. In response to the recommendation, a number of applications for employment, received from ex-officers, were forwarded to the Saar Governing Commission after a preliminary enquiry on certain particular points.—British Wire- less.

POLITICAL CRISIS SOLUTION

Cairo, Nov. 12.
A solution of the Egyptian political crisis was reached to-day, it is understood.

According to usually well-informed quarters, King Fuad has accepted, with slight modifications, the demands made by Nessim Pasha as a condition of his accepting the Premiership. These demands are understood to include the annulment of the present constitution, the dissolution of Parliament and the right of the Premier to choose his own Cabinet.

Ziwar Pasha, as intermediary between the Palace and Nessim Pasha, stated that he had negotiated the agreement after several interviews with King Fuad and Nessim Pasha.

No official announcement of the agreement has yet been made, but all circles are gratified by the report of its attainment. It is considered a very desirable step towards Anglo-Egyptian co-operation.—Reuter Special.
